Beachgoers are used to the majestic displays of Brown Pelicans as they nosedive for fish in the Mississippi Sound. But for the past week or so they have also been treated to the presence of some traveling White Pelicans, a larger version of the Brown, with black lining the tips of their enormous wingspan. White Pelicans are usually found in fresh water where they forage for fish and large salamanders in groups, rather than diving from the sky. Around our area they are more common along rivers, bayous or lakes.

BY GEOFF BELCHER
News Editor

A Bay St. Louis man was charged Thursday with kidnapping for allegedly taking off with his ex-girlfriend's three-year-old child.

The mother of the child told Waveland police on Tuesday that Daniel Joseph Newingham - "her ex-boyfriend, who was not the father" - had taken the child, Waveland Police Chief James A. Varnell said.

The mother said that she and Newingham had been living in Arkansas "when she had the child, but the child was from another man," Varnell. "The mother stated that they had broken up approximately three months ago."

The woman said that on July 3, Newingham's father called and told her he Dana Haas, 14, of Kiln, riding her nine-year-old She's A Power Train, nicknamed Scoot, makes a run in the All American Youth Barrel Race 10 Title which she captured on June 28 in Jackson.

Haas tops 554 for another barrel race title

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS
Publisher Emeritus

Dana Haas of Kiln won the All-American Youth Barrel Race 10 title held the last week of June in Jackson.

Haas, the 14-year-old daughter of Donnie and Tammy Haas, is a self-taught Barrel Race and trainer.

The All-American Youth Barrel Race 10 drew 554 entries from all over the United States and was open to riders ages 19-and-under.

The three-day event was held June 26, 27 and 28.

The championship earned Haas $10,000 plus an extra $1,297, she earned by finishing second on the second day of the event.

The young rider did not even make a qualifying run the first day, but Dana and Scoot came back the second day to finish second, earning their chance to run in the finals for the jackpot.

Out of the 262 qualifiers to make it to the finals, Dana drew number 261.

"The run began at 6 p.m. Saturday night and after several hours of watching and waiting, it was time for Scoot and I to make our final run of the weekend at 12 minutes before midnight," the young rider recalled last week.

"Coming in, the time to beat was a 14.480. As we entered the alleyway, I could see Scoot was ready by the time she was pulling at the bit. As I let her go and as we rounded the first barrel, I could hear the crowd cheer."

"I did not hear another thing (even though I was told the cheering continued) until after we crossed the time line and I heard a loud roar as I looked up at the clock. The clock showed a time of 14.375 and we had taken the lead."

Rider number 262 took the track and as she and he and his horse rounded the second barrel, it was knocked down, meaning automatic disqualification, Haas said.

Haas, who received her first horse at age five, started by placing barrels in a field and walking an untrained horse around barrels.

Then they began riding the course.

She has been riding her championship horse Scoot since its purchase five years ago. She's A Power Train (nicknamed Scoot) is a nine-year-old quarter horse bred in Louisiana.

"It is during the last two years that Scoot and I have really begun to come through and be very competitive in barrel racing," Dana said.

Dana and Scoot have taken home over $18,800 in cash and prizes since December 2002.

In May, Dana and Scoot captured the Martha Josey Junior Barrel Race championship in Marshall, Texas. This competition involved some 150 competitors, ranging in ages 14 to 20, from across the United States and Canada.

Over the years, she has entered competitions across

Mississippi, Louisville, KY, Memphis, TN, Texas, Louisiana and Alabama.

The Kiln Haas family spends many weekends on the road so Dana can compete in her Barrel Racing.

Dana wants to use part of the money to upgrade to a bigger living quarters horse trailer and save the rest, her mother said.

Dana and Scoot's next big run is the last week of July in Jackson, where they will be running for the title of National Barrel Horse Association Youth World Champion.

Traffic stop leads to drug arrest

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS
Publisher Emeritus

A Bay St. Louis resident was apprehended after a police chase and brief struggle. The man was arrested and now faces several charges including, possession of a controlled substance, Waveland Police Chief Jimmy Varnell said.

"Randy Leroy Bell, 32 of Bay St. Louis was arrested and charged with possession of a controlled substance, "crack cocaine," simple assault on a police officer, resisting arrest, no proof of insurance, reckless driving, failure to yield to blue lights and siren and improper equipment. Bell was placed in the Hancock County Criminal Justice Facility with bond set at $8,100. But, due to these charges, Bell is being held as a parole violator for the Mississippi Department of Corrections with no bond," Varnell added.

The incident leading to Bell's arrest began around 9 p.m. on July 2, when Waveland Police Officers attempted to conduct a traffic stop on a vehicle in the area of Erie Street and Avenue B. Officer Eddie Peterson reported to dispatch that the vehicle was not stopping, Varnell said.

"Bell continued south of Waveland Avenue as if police were not there. Then to Herlihy and on Combel Streets, where he exited the moving vehicle. The vehicle continued and came to a stop in the Waveland Housing Authority property between two buildings," Varnell's report said.

Varnell continued, "The suspect was later identified as Randy Bell and when approached by officers gave a brief struggle. Approximately 24 grams of crack cocaine was confiscated off Bell with a street value of $300."

Assisting agencies were the Bay St. Louis Police Department, Hancock County Sheriff's Deputies and Bay-Waveland Narcotics Task Force officers.

Narcotics Detective Ian Estorff with the Bay-Waveland Narcotics Task Force is in charge of the narcotics investigation.

Supervisors ponder possibility of powering up boat owners

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

Many boat owners who use their water front lots mainly as a dock for their boats would like to have access to electric power poles.

Right now power must be provided to boats by a generator. Residents in flood zones cannot get power poles until they obtain a building permit.

This is mainly to insure that people do not move campers and RVs on to the property and live in them permanently, which is a big problem in the county, said an employee at the building permit office.

Supervisors and building officials are now looking into the possibility of allowing some boat owners to obtain electrical service, but with restrictions to that service. One suggestion was to allow access in areas zoned agricultural, but not in residential areas.

Attorney John Scafide said he saw no reason to allow power to lots in residential areas without houses. District 2 Supervisor Rocky Pullman said he did not agree because people could just go ahead and use generators in those areas and that the generators would make a lot of noise which would cause another kind of problem.

Other concerns about allowing property owners without structures on their property to obtain power were that the people would live in their boats or use the property for a commercial concern such as a shrimping operation. Discussions will continue on the subject. Supervisors have requested the help and input of the Planning and Zoning Office and Urban Planner Bill Hessel of Gulfport.

In other business:

• The Hancock County

Courthouse ground floor rotunda and conference room will be open for use in the August 5 primary elections and vote counting. The Courthouse is expected to re-open in September.

• The Hancock County Sheriff's Department has received a $37,456 Stop Violence Against Women Grant from the Office of Justice Programs Division of Public Safety Planning, announced Chief Administrator for the department Ronnie Cuevas.

The 75/25 grant will be used to hire an officer who will deal exclusively with the investigation and follow-up of domestic violence cases and reports, said Cuevas. Two lap top computers will also be purchased to be used by the officer and administration. The county averages about one domestic violence complaint a day, most of which go through the court system, Cuevas said.

Cruisin' the Coast may make a stop in city of Waveland in 2004

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

Cruisin' the Coast may be coming to Waveland in 2004. Hancock County Board of Tourism director Beth Carriere told city officials that if they could approve funding commitments for the event, she would introduce the idea to the board of directors for the event at this week's meeting.

Carriere said she was confident the Cruisin' the Coast board would be receptive to the idea of adding Waveland to the venue.

Aldermen voted to appropriate $17,500 for the event fees in the next fiscal year's budget, with a commitment for at least three years' participation.

The fee would list Waveland as a "full venue," which would list the city as a required stop for Cruisin' participants. The fee would also include all advertising and three days worth of 1950s and '60s musical entertainment every other hour, with a full stage setup.

Event planners are expecting 6,000 cars to participate in 2003 during the week of Oct. 5-12. More than 5,000 car owners registered last year for the event. The participants would be capped at 6,000, said Carriere.

Cruisin' generates about $12 million each year for the three coastal counties, said Carriere, with Bay St. Louis now being one of the most popular stops.

In other business, the board:

• Approved moving the meetings of July 21 and July 23 to one combined meeting on Wednesday, July 16 at 6:30 p.m. sue to scheduling conflicts.

• Approved a phone line and alarm system to be activated in the Waveland Civic Center on Coleman Ave., effective immediately. The building is under renovation and vandalism has been an ongoing problem. The board also discussed finishing one of the rooms in the building to be used as an office site in the near future.

• Approved emergency repairs of a sewer cave-in at Central and Farrar and Pine and Safford due to storm damage.

• Approved Mayor Tommy Longo's signature on a Certificate of Substantial Completion for the Waveland Public Library. The library should be open to the public next month.

Cuevas' Quotes

by Ellis C. Cuevas
Publisher Emeritus

Business After Hours set July 17 at Whitney

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's July Business After Hours, will be held Thursday, July 17, 5 to 7 p.m. at Whitney Bank, Bay 90 Branch, 800 Highway 90.

The sponsors are Whitney Bank, and as a special entertainment, Davis and Sax will be on hand.

I am sure that Dusty Rhodes and Ames Kergosien, will see to it that there will be some great food and refreshments in addition to the entertainment.

I always look forward to the Business After Hours events as it gives me a chance to get together with old friends and make new acquaintances.

I have a feeling there will also be a couple impersonators of me there too.

By the way, Davis and Sax provides great entertainment.

Bring along a couple business cards as there will be several door prizes too.

I know it is early, but if you want to make sure you will get a booth space, now is the time to sign up for the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's Business and Industry EXPO.

This year will be the 6th annual EXPO and the number of participants grows each year. Booth space is limited, and I am sure, that as in previous years, there will end up with a waiting list.

Arrangements are going to be made to create space for several more booths this year, but the number will be limited because the Hancock County Civic Center will hold only so many.

It is surprising how successful the EXPO has been and the great time all the participants and visitors have.

By the way, this year's date for the EXPO is Thursday, Aug. 21, 4 to 7 p.m.

Application forms are available at the chamber's office, 412 Highway 90, Suite 6, Bay St. Louis.

Next weekend anglers may want to get into action at the LaDell Hickey Crooks 3rd Annual Fishing Rodeo.

The fishing rodeo is a function of the Ansley Heron Bay Civic Association and is scheduled for Friday, Saturday and Sunday, July 18, 19 and 20 from LaFrance's Marina.

There is an adult and children division. Admission for adults is $15, and for children 12 and under, $5.

There will be cash awards for first, second and third place in the adult division in Red Fish, Trout and Flounder categories and children's category, croaker, rod and reel.

Proceeds from the fishing rodeo is used by the Ansley Herons Bay Civic Association for community projects and a percentage will be donated to the Wildlife Rehabilitation and Nature Preservation Society (WRANPS) in Pass Christian.

For further information on the fishing rodeo, contact, Nike Milhet, 228-46602503, Mike Grimillion 228-466-0378, Wally Ramage 228-467-9180, or Nancy Cohorn at 228-467-3174.

Protecting children, helping parents

I was pleased to join the Mississippi-based American Family Association (AFA) in voicing support of existing laws that require libraries receiving federal funding to install anti-pornography filters, or risk losing federal funds.

In a 6-3 decision the U.S. Supreme Court agreed, and ruled that such laws do not violate the First Amendment and are constitutional. It is a victory for parents, for taxpayers and ultimately for our children.

From the Senate

By U.S. Sen. Trent Lott

Congress passed the laws to protect children from getting Internet pornography at public libraries, and to prevent them from being exposed to this material by adults using the libraries. Of course, some left-wing groups challenged the laws in court.

Seems these "civil libertarians" are protecting choices for underage children, but not for their parents or taxpayers. Court, not Congress, was the opponents' chosen option because Americans and the Congress that represents them overwhelmingly believe that publicly-funded school or community libraries should be porn-free environments.

With some polls showing as many as 92 percent of Americans in favor of the filters, it's pretty clear that a majority of taxpayers do not want to subsidize porn with their tax dollars, especially at a place where their children are supposed to be receiving a legitimate education.

Congress enacted these laws because we see this not so much as a political issue, but as a parenting one.

It's tough to raise children today, especially for parents trying to give their children a childhood consistent with the traditions and standards of their own upbringing, or by ways prescribed by their religious faith.

It was hard to raise children back when I raised mine, and as I took at my young grandchildren today, I have serious concerns about the pressures they will face growing up.

The trials and temptations our grandchildren will undergo far eclipse those experienced by their parents just a few years ago, and are infinitely more daunting than what my generation faced.

These filters - while not perfect - will help curb

Separating myth from reality

As chancellor of The University of Mississippi, I have learned it is difficult to have a rational conversation about an emotional subject such as a school mascot. Still, it is important to separate emotion from fact, myth from reality, and accuracy from misleading generalizations.

American history has marched through our campus on several occasions, leaving among its marks our Confederate monument, historic Lyceum, and cemetery. This year, we will add a civil rights monument to memorialize the role Ole Miss played in making higher education in Mississippi accessible to all.

To allay the fears of those who believe we are abandoning our history and heritage, please know that (1) we are the Ole Miss Rebels and will continue to present ourselves to the world under that name; (2) the song "Dixie" remains in our repertoire of school spirit songs and will continue to be played at sporting events; (3) Colonel Rebel is an official trademark of the University and will continue to be included among our registered names, appear on merchandise and in public presentations.

Our athletics history began in 1876 when we fielded an intercollegiate baseball team called "The Red and Blue." We selected as school colors the crimson of Harvard and the Navy blue of Yale. There was no mascot.

In 1896 students published the first yearbook and called it "Ole Miss." Since then the institution has been known affectionately as Ole Miss, one of the most recognizable university names in America.

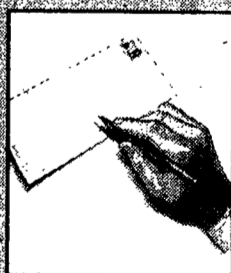

In 1929 we became the "Mississippi Flood" and continued using the colors red and blue. 1936 brought a name change from "Flood" to "Rebels," but there is no evidence of an on-field mascot for the Flood or the Rebels.

An official mascot did not appear until 1979 when the Department of Athletics introduced the figure of an "old man in baggy pants" as part of a

Beware, Garden Isles. There's a thief in the neighborhood!

Beware Garden Isle Community residents - there is a thief in the neighborhood. My Grandson has worked hard all summer, saving money for a stereo, TV, PlayStation 2, and new speakers. Early Saturday morning, July 5th, his car was broken into and everything stolen out of his car, which was parked right in front of his house. To the thieves who took his stuff - Beware - God and the community are watching.

Wal-Mart donates $1,000 to Pass Christian Library

The Pass Christian Public Library was beneficiary of the a Literacy Grant offered by the Wal-Mart Foundation in conjunction with the opening of the new Wal-Mart Supercenter in Pass Christian on June 18.

Sheila Peters, head librarian, was on hand at the Grand Opening festivities to receive a check in the amount of $1,000 from store manager, Gary Russ.

"This generous donation will be added to our materials budget," said Peters. "We hope to add books to our collection that will encourage recreational and educational reading for both children and adults."

Pass Christian is a community of readers who frequent the library, and we are grateful to Wal-Mart and Mr. Russ for helping us provide new materials for our patrons and the entire Harrison County system."

Part of the Harrison County Library System, Pass Christian Library is celebrating its third anniversary this year. The library is located behind Pass Christian City Hall at 111 Hiern Avenue. Library hours are Monday through Thursday from 8 a.m. until 6 p.m., Friday from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

those pressures, ensuring that out children are looking at something worthwhile at a public library.

Since the explosion of the Internet in the mid-1990s, Congress, the American people, educators and parents have struggled to maximize the Internet's educational potential, while managing its many pitfalls.

The Internet is fast becoming the embodiment of all human knowledge. Information about virtually everything can be easily found with the stroke of a few keys — and I mean everything.

Because it cannot easily be regulated, some content on the internet is actually illegal material, clearly obscene by even the most liberal definitions.

Filters, most of which block access to specific web sites based on key words, are the best way to shield children from inappropriate material at public libraries. Because the filters are triggered by certain words, they do sometimes block access to legitimate sites, and the law's opponents tried to seize upon this to kill the law.

However, these instances are by far the exception to the rule. It is very unlikely that a filter will block a child from getting needed information on American history, mathematics, civics, or any other topic relevant to elementary or secondary education.

As the Court concluded, library users may still ask library staff to disable filters for a legitimate reason, thus ensuring First Amendment access while helping to ensure that unrestricted access is not obtained by children.

This was a good decision by the Supreme Court that will protect our children, and it will help ensure that our tax dollars are not paying for porn at public schools and public libraries.

The Internet is an unsurpassed educational tool, but its dark side can forever scar children if left unchecked. Most American taxpayers don't want to subsidize pornographers with their tax dollars.

Most parents don't want children accessing pornography at school or public libraries. I'm glad the high court agrees with most Americans.

Given the type of obscene material easily available on the Internet, what kind of person wouldn't?

national trend toward Disney-like cartoon characters. The original Colonel Rebel continued with a separate identity from the on-field mascot, appearing on printed materials, statues, yard signs, and T-shirts.

We fully expect our fans to continue to display Colonel Rebel, but the on-field mascot will be replaced with a more energetic, vibrant figure.

We are gratified that Ole Miss students and fans are emotionally invested in how the University is presented to the public. We are deeply disappointed that some would inject race into the discussion.

Athletics director Pete Boone is responsible for every aspect of game management, including on-field activities. I endorse his administrative leadership and totally support and applaud Mr. Boone's recommendation.

The decision to update the mascot was based on the belief that a Disney-like elderly plantation person is not representative of a modern athletics program. Our mascot should reflect the youthful energy, vitality and enthusiasm of our students.

The Department of Athletics soon will announce a contest soliciting ideas for a new mascot and a process that will include input from students, active alumni, donors and season ticket holders. The final selection will be made by the Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics based upon preferences expressed by those who participate in the process — particularly our students.

In the meantime, we hope the people of Mississippi and Ole Miss students, faculty, staff, alumni and friends will focus their energy on issues such as the economy, health care, high quality education, literacy, and a better life for Mississippians.

Ole Miss is committed to offering a world-class educational experience for our students, relevant research by our faculty, and meaningful service by our entire community. It is a waste of energy to be bogged down in a strident argument about a mascot.

We have generated great momentum as a university and we are committed to the relentless pursuit of excellence and leadership.

Robert C. Khayat, 15th chancellor of The University of Mississippi

Hancock library system chosen for RIF program

The Hancock County Library System has been chosen as one of 200 public libraries across the nation by Reading Is Fundamental (RIF) to participate in the Summer Reading Journey, a national public awareness campaign, sponsored by RIF, funded by Verizon, and with books and resources provided by Scholastic.

RIF selected the libraries with support from the Association for Library Service to Children, a division of the American Library Association, and Libraries for the Future.

The campaign will feature fun summer reading resources, including Scholastics The Magic School Bus, Ms. Frizzle of The Magic School Bus, and Riffington, RIF's spoke-creature. They will

Talk About Poetry with Lenny Emmanuel set July 17 at Da Beach House in the Bay

Lenny Emmanuel, internationally published poet, essayist and editor, will read from his collection "The Icecream Lady" on July 17 at 7 p.m. at Da Beach House in Bay St. Louis.

He will also read from his current work in progress, "Goodbye America!" in particular the sequence "Wells Amid The Wastes."

As a recent resident in Pass Christian and lecturer in writing and poetry at The University of Southern Mississippi Gulf Coast Campus, this is his first reading in the Gulf Coast area. He will be teaching a course in writing and a course in poetry at USM in the fall.

A native of Savannah, Ga., Emmanuel attended the University of Miami, receiving a bachelor's degree in chemistry and bachelor's degree in English, a master's degree in English from Tulane, and master's degree from The University of Indianapolis.

He also studied at the University of Iowa with Donald Justice, Mark Strand, George Starbuck, and Paul Engle. During his years at the Indiana University Medical Center in Indianapolis, as senior administrative officer in pathology, for 15 of those years he held dual appointments in pathology and English.

After his return to the South in 1998, he became poetry editor for "The New Laurel Review" out of New Orleans, conducting interviews, writing reviews, or writing critical essays relating to the practice of making poems.

In the most recent issue, v. 22, his essay "I My Mine Me" explores the possibilities of how and why most poems are rejected from our contemporary magazines. Though Emmanuel insists there are no absolute formulas for making poems, he will be among the first to discuss the effects of making poems, that making poems is one way of moving one's mind to better, healthier places.

Wild Horse & Burro Adoption scheduled for Hancock County Multi-Purpose Arena

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Thousands of acres of habitat for America's wild horses and burros are in danger due to continuing drought and wildfires throughout the western United States.

Therefore, the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) is currently conducting several emergency gathers aimed at saving as many of these animals as possible.

As a result, thousands of horses are now in need of homes and some are already in route to Little Rock for adoption on July 26-27 at the Hancock County Multi-Purpose Arena. Most of the horses will be coming from Utah and Nevada.

"We are expecting to have an INCREDIBLE selection of wild horses and burros available, lots of young, colorful animals," a BLM spokesman said. More than 140 animals will be available.

The adoption is from 8 a.m. to 5:00pm on Saturday, July 26 and from 8:00am to 12 noon on Sunday, July 27. About 140 wild horses and burros will be made available for adoption to individuals who agree to give them good homes. The animals will be adopted utilizing the competitive bid process. Minimum bids will be $125 per animal and admission to the event is free. The animals can be viewed on Friday prior to the adoption.

To qualify to adopt a wild mustang or burro, individuals must be at least 18 years old, a resident of the United States, and have no convictions for inhumane treatment of animals. Adopters also must have adequate facilities, the financial means to care for the animal(s), and should have some experience training or raising a horse or burro. A stock trailer will be required to transport the animal(s).

Qualified adopters can adopt up to four animals. Mustangs make excellent riding stock, and properly trained some adopted mustangs have become national champions in dressage, snaffle bit competitions, trail, endurance, and jumping. The animals available for adoption have been wormed and vaccinated and are in good health.

The process is called an "adoption" because BLM retains title to the animal for one year after the adoption. During the year, a BLM or designated representative will visit each adopter to ensure the animal is being cared for and has a good home. During this time, adopters cannot sell their adopted animal. After the first year, adopters may apply for title. BLM will pass title of the animal if all the stipulations of the adoption agreement have been met. The animal becomes the private property of the adopter only after BLM transfers title, which completes the adoption process.

More than 185,000 animals have been placed in private homes since the Adopt-A-Horse or Burro Program began in 1973.

For more information call 1-888-274-2133 or visit BLM's website at www.adoptahorse.blm.gov. Adopters should try to be approved prior to the adoption. Payment can be made by cash, check, or money order.

was in town and would like to see the child for a couple of days, Varnell said, promising to have the child back by Tuesday. When he didn't show as expected, she called the police, who then went to Newingham's Drum St. address.

Newingham wasn't home, but had gone back to Arkansas.

When Waveland Investigator James Goss contacted Newingham on his cell phone, Varnell said, the suspect "gave a totally different statement to police as to why he had the child. He stated that the mother asked him to take the child for awhile because she was financially burdened and was trying to get away from her current boyfriend."

Newingham said he had told the woman he was going to his father's house in Arkansas to find a job, Varnell said. When Goss told Newingham he was being accused of kidnapping, he was back at the Waveland Police Department by 8 a.m. the next day with the child "who was in good health," Varnell said.

"The Department of Human services was called and assisted in the investigation and returned the child to its mother."

"It's one of those he-said/she-said, he-said/she-said situations, but the child's back and everybody's happy now but the man who's in jail," Varnell said.

coast-wide in recent weeks."

Among the discussions at the meeting was the need of help from the general public in reporting any suspicious activities or persons in their neighborhoods.

Garber said, "Law enforcement is urging all citizens to be cautious of their surroundings. Also, to report any suspicious activity or persons in their neighborhoods to the appropriate law enforcement agencies."

Citizens are also being asked to record descriptions of suspicious vehicles, tag numbers and times noticed.

Residents are also being urged to secure their property when away for a length of time.

Garber added, "Residents in the county area who plan on being away for an extended time can notify the sheriff's office and deputies can perform extra patrols in their areas."

Hancock County Interim Investigator Chief Kenny Hurt said sheriff's investigators are investigating several recent burglaries in the county.

The Hancock County Sheriff's office can be reached at 228-467-5101, or 601-798-8555.

'Ecstasy' found in Waveland

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS
Publisher Emeritus

A Pass Christian resident was arrested following a traffic stop in Waveland last Sunday and the driver charged with possession of a controlled substance and also implicated as a suspect in a Bay St. Louis burglary, Police Jimmy Varnell reports.

"Around 1:45 a.m. Sunday, Officer Robert Gavagnie conducted a traffic stop in the area of Highway 90 and Arnold Street. Officer identified the vehicle's registration and address.

"Bay St. Louis Police had put out a BOLO (Be On Look Out) the day before on the vehicle allegedly involved in a burglary," Varnell's report said.

Mark Henry Davis Jr., of Pass Christian, was charged driving while license suspended, careless driving, no proof of insurance and possession of a controlled substance, Ecstasy, Varnell said.

"Following the stop of the vehicle, officers found 21.5 tablets of 'Ecstasy' with an approximate street value of $500. Davis was placed in the Hancock County Criminal Justice Facility under a $6,400 bond," Varnell added.

Laura Stepro, Narcotics Investigator with the Bay-Waveland Narcotics Task Force is in charge of the narcotics charge. Bay St. Louis Detectives were called to the scene and investigated the burglary, Varnell reported.

SEALs

One of the appropriations was $16.5 million for the Special Operations Forces Riverine Craft employed by Special Boat Unit 22 at the Stennis Space Center.

The $16.5 million appropriation to the Navy SEALs operation at the space center has no bearing on the outcome of a proposed expansion of the training area at the center, said the aid. The appropriation is meant to benefit the present operations, whether or not the training area is expanded.

A proposal to expand the training area to encompass a little over 5,000 acres in the Stennis Buffer Zone is on the table. Safety issues and the loss of property tax revenue are the main concerns that Hancock County officials have about the proposal.

Much of the land is privately owned and should the proposal become reality, property owners would be required to sell their land, which they now lease to the federal government. Many retained the rights to the land after the Space Center moved here in the early 1960's.

At a meeting last week, consultants for the Navy said that if the project goes forward, land owners who chose not to sell would have their property seized by imminent domain. Neither the Navy representatives nor their consultants were able to satisfactorily answer questions about safety issues or revenue losses at that time and talks will continue.

The defense panel also approved $3.2 billion for the procurement of three DDG-51 class destroyers, at least one of which will definitely be built in the state, said an aid in Cochran's office this week.

The ship will be built by Northrop Grumman Ship Systems, formerly Ingalls, in Pascagoula. Northrop also has an operation in Gulfport, said the aid, but was unclear about which, if any, of the project would take place at that operation.

The bill also appropriates $591 million for continuation of LHD-8, and amphibious assault ship and $1.3 billion for and LPD-17 class transport ship including $75 million for advanced procurement of long-lead items for the seventh ship of the class. All three classes of ships are built by Northrop.

The bill also funds other Gulf Coast shipbuilding activities, said the press release, including $73 million for service life extension and improvements for four Landing Craft Air-Cushioned Vehicle amphibious hovercraft and $2 million for Advanced Waterjet-21 propulsion technology. This funding will impact workers in the Picayune and Eastern Louisiana area, said the aid, but gave no other specifics.

The bill also approved over $46 million for Fire Scout Unmanned Aerial Vehicles manufactured by Northrop Grumman.

Propellers for the unmanned vehicles are produced at an operation just east of Pascagoula, said the aid.

HEAD FOR HIBERNIA

Here's a twist:
a mortgage
that pays you.

Aren't paybacks great?

The Reverse Mortgage from Hibernia.

Now you can borrow cash against the value of your home - and you don't have to pay it back until your home is sold. Just head for Hibernia's Reverse Mortgage.

If you're a homeowner, age 62 or older, you can borrow a lump sum to pay off debts, or to cover large expenses. You can even structure a reverse mortgage to pay you monthly income - income you can use to pay for regular expenses, the costs of in-home care, or anything else you may need.

Best of all, you don't have to make monthly payments. When your home is sold, the proceeds pay off the loan.

That kind of thinking has made us a leading mortgage lender. Go to Hibernia.com and enter the keyword HOME or call us.

Healthy forests needed in Mississippi

BY JAMES L. CUMMINS

For the first time, I have found something that I agree with Greenpeace on - "Mississippi's forests are at risk." It is due to a lack of protection, restoration and management, not over cutting. Many of our forests are overcrowded, stressed and susceptible to fire and disease, besides being poor wildlife habitat.

The Healthy Forest Restoration Act is a federal bill that would empower federal land managers with the tools to implement scientific management practices on federal forests to reduce catastrophic wildfire while establishing new programs for conservation and fighting devastating insect pests such as the Southern pine beetle.

My favorite title of the bill is the Healthy Forests Reserve Program. It will restore one-million acres of declining forest ecosystem types that are critical to, amongst other things, the recovery of threatened and endangered species. The longleaf pine ecosystem in South Mississippi will be a major beneficiary of this program. On Earth Day, the Bush administration announced a special, 500,000-acre sign-up in the Conservation Reserve Program dedicated to bottomland hardwoods (oak).

The Southern Forest Resource Assessment commissioned by the Clinton administration ranks urban sprawl as the greatest threat facing Southern forests. The study stated that by 2020, about 12 million acres could be lost to urban uses and an additional 19 million acres are expected to be lost by 2040.

The study shows that a decline in "natural" forest trees is taking place, while pine plantations are increasing. They project that pine populations in the South are going to increase from 32 million to 54 million acres by 2040. All the natural forest types, such as oak and longleaf pine, are projected to decline.

Our National Forests have been very beneficial in providing habitat for species such as the Louisiana Black Bear, the red-cockaded woodpecker and the gopher tortoise. However, to improve their habitat we should not end timber sales as Greenpeace advocates. We should manage the stands to their benefit. The worst thing that could ever happen would be for timber to not have economic value and we neglect our forests or allow them to go to other uses - such as concrete and asphalt.

We can't put our forests in a lock box. They are living systems and will change with or without us. We have to restore them. We have to manage them. We have to protect them. These basic principles will allow us to have healthy forests - which includes clean air and water, quality fish and wildlife resources and strong communities for generations to come.

James L. Cummins is Executive Director of the Mississippi Fish and Wildlife Foundation in Stoneville, Mississippi. Known as "Wildlife Mississippi," the Foundation is a non-profit, conservation organization founded to conserve, restore and enhance fish, wildlife and plant resources throughout Mississippi. Their web site is www.wildlifemiss.org.

PRCC offers new programs

Pearl River Community College will be offering two new technical programs next school year that school officials believe will help satisfy a demand in the workforce.

The programs are construction engineering technology and medical billing and coding technology. Construction engineering technology, a two-year technical program which will be available this fall, will prepare technicians for employment within the construction industry in mid-level management operations as estimators, material specialists, planners, project managers, layout specialists, or other construction operations.

Earning an associate in applied science degree, students who complete the program will be prepared for jobs in supervision, estimating, layout, handling, storing, monitoring, materials, safety, leadership, and organization of construction projects.

The statewide outlook for employment in the career projects a 19 percent growth rate by the year 2008, with average annual earnings of $48,100. The Biloxi-Gulfport-Pascagoula area projects a 25 percent growth rate, with average annual earnings of $50,170, and the Hattiesburg area projects a 33 percent growth rate, with average annual earnings of $43,090.

The Medical Billing and Coding Technology program is offered as an option through PRCC's Business and Office Systems Technology Program on the Poplarville campus. This two-year technical program, which will be available for the spring 2004 semester, will offer opportunity for employment in the medical field in hospitals, clinics, nursing homes and insurance companies.

The statewide outlook for employment in this career project 42 percent growth rate by the year 2008, with average earnings of $20,440. The Biloxi-Gulfport-Pascagoula area projects a 50 percent growth rate, with average annual earnings of $23,350, and the Hattiesburg area projects a 40 percent growth rate, with average annual earnings of $19,170.

GETTING RIPPED

The predominance of rip currents on Mississippi beaches and the growth of mushrooms

Views From a Front Porch

by Paul Estronza La Violette
laviolet@mail.datasync.com

rip: A stretch of water in a river, an estuary, or a tidal channel made rough by waves meeting an opposing current.

rip current (rip current): A strong, narrow surface current that flows rapidly away from the shore, returning the water carried landward by waves.

American Heritage Dictionary

There has been a lot in the news lately about the storms along the Florida panhandle and that despite red warning flags, people were going into the water on the beaches and being "sucked in" by rip currents and drowning. An interesting aside to this was that one television announcer gave the home states of many of the victims. Not unexpectedly, most were from mid-western states with little experience in rough and conditions.

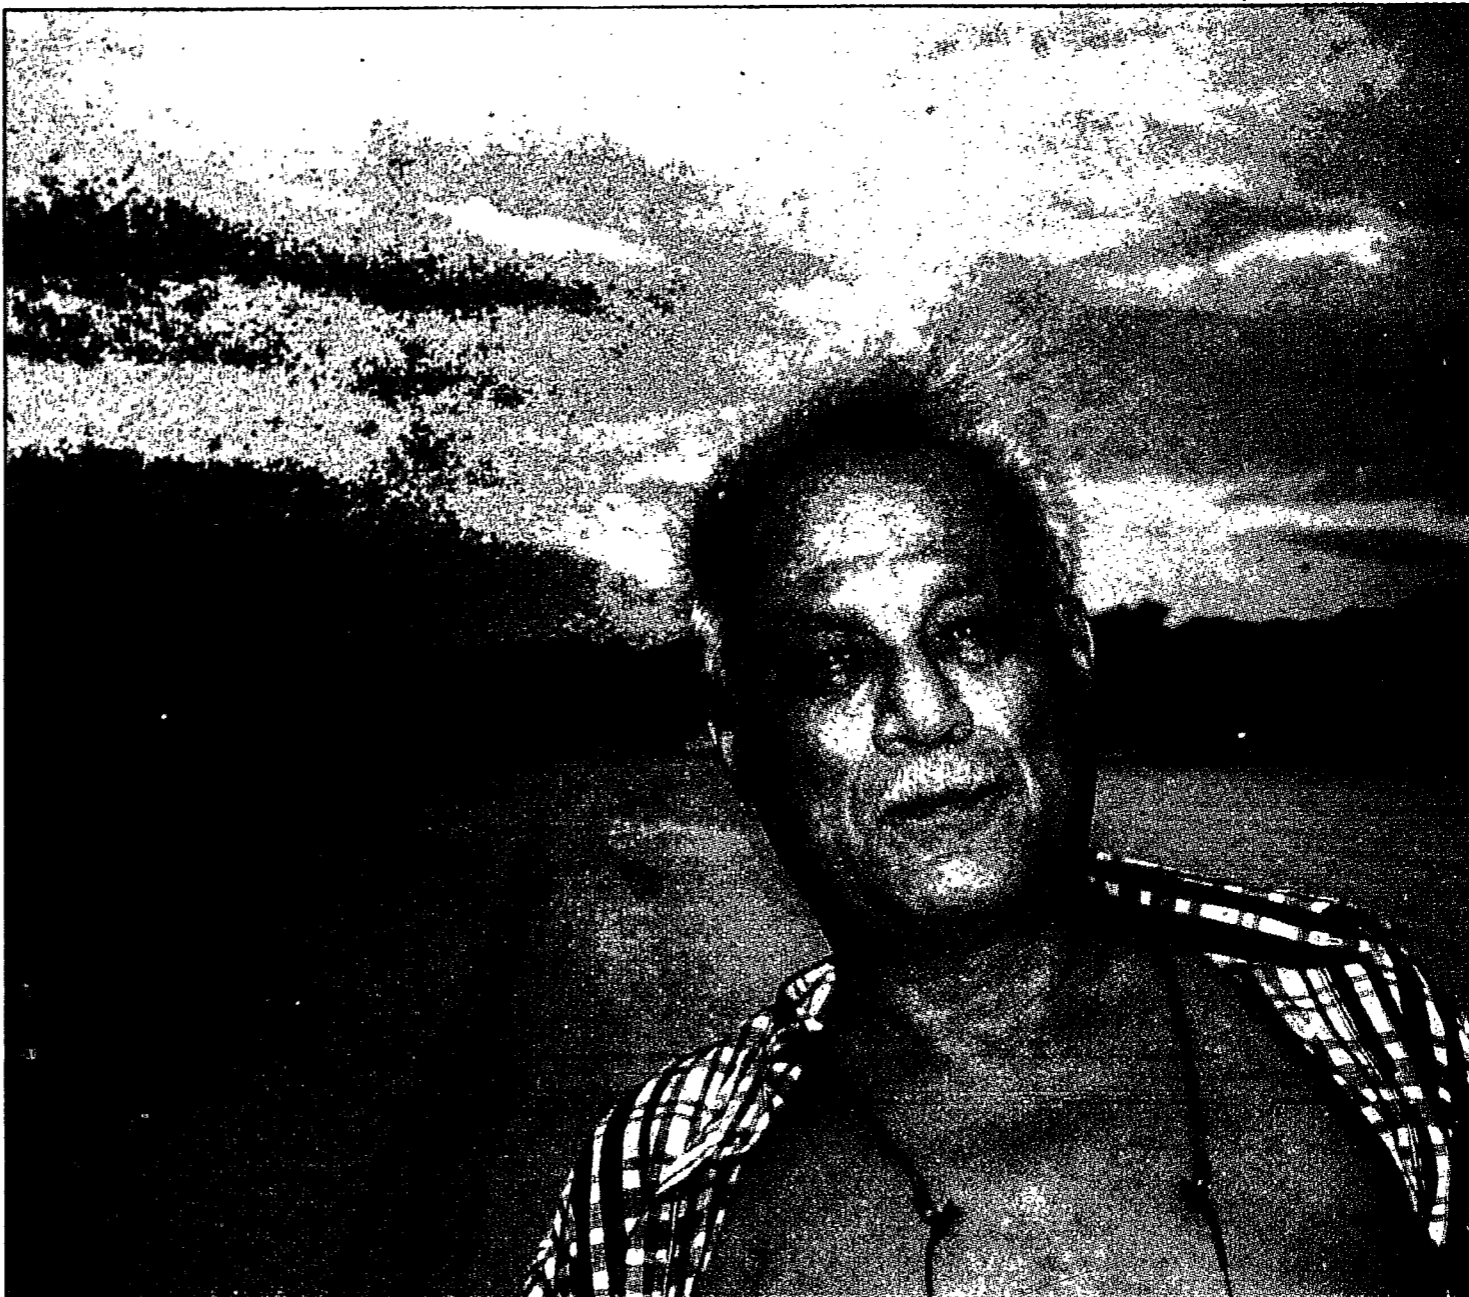

A friend made a comment to me on the drownings and added that it was lucky we lived along the Mississippi Sound where there are no rip currents. I nodded and didn't say anything. Actually we do have rip currents and, while they do certainly not have anywhere near the strength to "suck" people out to sea, they are fairly strong and do a lot to carve our beaches and move their sand about in distinctive patterns.

The terminology rip current is deceiving in its usage. A rip as suggested by the dictionary definition above is just about any stretch of water that is being opposed by water moving another way or going much slower. A rip can even be generated by an uneven bottom, a shoal, a sudden deepening of the sea bottom. However, when the term rip current is used in beach areas it refers to currents resulting from wind driven wave action.

"So, let's talk about what is a rip current and how does it form on the beaches of Hancock County?"

The answer lies in the resistance of the sand beach to the fluid action of the waters of the incoming waves. Picture a wave of water moving onto a beach. This mass of water hits the

Echo staff photos by Geoff Belcher

World-renowned oceanographer and Waveland author Paul Estronza La Violette hit the beach near his home recently to educate Hancock Countians on the Mississippi Sound's rip currents.

Although the Mississippi Sound is not known for its crashing surf, La Violette says, the Sound still has its rip tides, as evidenced by the patterns of erosion, foam and debris on the beach at Waveland.

solid beach and can't go any further. Some of the volume of water involved moves back, but there is another wave coming in and it forces the first wave mass to return to the beach. Water starts to accumulate in the surf area, things become unstable and something has to give.

Some of the things that give are the small particles of sand that make up the beach. We will talk about this sand movement later, but for now it is the accumulated water that we are interested in. Since water is by its nature fluid, it is easily moved to one side. To show that movement, we can picture the incoming wave as an arrow hitting the beach so:

Since water is accumulating very rapidly, the water in the surf area is forced to move to the right of the incoming wave action on its right side and to the left on its left side. The result forms an alongshore current that together with the incoming water forms something that looks sort of like a "T":

This is nice, and since it is the current that is moving parallel to the beach in the same depth water, most novice swimmers don't pay attention to the fact that they are being carried to one side. They may not even notice. But that sideways movement is the beginning of trouble. Lets take a look at a larger part of the picture to show why. Since there is actually a large wall of water being pushed at the beach, nature, by a whole bunch of hydrological rules, breaks the force of that wall into a number of "T's".

Note that the places where the alongshore arrows meet are very narrow and there is a lot of water involved. There has to be some way for this continually accumulating water to get out. There is. A rip current. This narrow, fast moving surface current reverses the water and takes it back out to sea. And if he or she hasn't been careful, with it goes the luckless swimmer:

These rips can actually be seen by a person standing on the beach. They appear as series of narrow, fast flowing foamy water moving out to sea neatly positioned between the larger areas of wave action. One way to find a rip current is to follow with your eyes the alongshore line of an incoming wave until you find a break. Note that the location of that break persists over the passage of several waves. This is a rip current pushing its way through the incoming waves.

The straighter the beach, the more regular will be the position of each rip current in a series of along-shore rips currents. If it is hundred feet along the shore between two rips currents, it will be hundred feet before the next and the one after that. I am using as my example a mass of water hitting the beach perpendicular. The action will be similar if the comes in at an angle, but the spacing will be larger (i.e., instead of a hundred feet it could be two hundred).

If there is a storm pushing the water onto the beach, than the narrow strip of rip water being returned to sea can be very strong. Most experienced swimmers and boaters that live along an ocean coast are familiar with this rip action and use rip currents to carry them out through what appears to be the uninitiated as be immense impenetrable breakers.

Surfboarders, for example, use rip currents to carry them through the incoming large waves. Once through the surf, they turn right or left to get out of the rip and position themselves for another ride in. People drown when they tire trying to swim against the rip action. This is tragic, since swimming a few dozen feet to the right or left will take them out of the current.

All of this has an effect on the transport of sand in the surf zone (told you I would come back to this.) If the wave action is continuous, the small particles of beach sand stirred up start to move in the direction of the current, much like the

LSU has announced the names of the students who have made the Dean's List and the Chancellor's Honor Roll for the spring 2003 semester. For the first time, the Dean's List and Chancellor's Honor Roll are being posted online so that media representatives can copy-and-paste the names of local students for publication. Both lists are sorted by state, and Louisiana names are further sorted by parish. The lists also provide students, hometowns. Students who earned grade-point averages of 4.0 during the semester are listed on the Chancellor's Honor Roll. Students who earned grade-point averages of 3.5 to 3.9 are listed on the Dean's List.

Hancock High teacher serves internship at Scott Aquarium

An internship "behind the scenes" at The University of Southern Mississippi's Scott Aquarium has Hancock High School science teacher Brian Fitch thinking about new strategies for his classroom.

The Bay St. Louis resident teaches microbiology and environmental science and has just finished a two-week internship as part of Mississippi Gulf Coast School-to-Career Partnership. The program places teachers in working environments at businesses, institutions and organizations on the coast so they can take real-world experiences in various careers back to their classrooms.

"I fed sharks, fed snakes, cleaned tanks, learned how to use a spectrophotometer and dissolved oxygen meter and lots of other things," Fitch said. "It was a challenge learning how to properly feed all the different types of organisms at the aquarium, especially learning their nutritional needs."

Fitch, who has been keeping various kinds of animals since he was small, described his Scott Aquarium experience with the predominantly Gulf of Mexico marine and coastal critters as "like being a kid in a candy store."

He credits his learning experiences in large part to Scott Aquarium's head aquarist, Buck Schesny. Schesny was his primary mentor during the internship and is a recent recipient of USM's annual staff excellence award in the category of skilled crafts.

"He is very knowledgeable about all aspects of this job," Fitch said. "He has so much practical knowledge, and he can also build just about anything he needs in the aquarium."

"I love animals, and this experience reinforced a lot of what I already knew. It stressed hygiene, proper nutrition and meeting the animals' basic needs," Fitch said.

The teacher intern said the difference in scale was definitely a new experience: large fish, large tanks and large filtration systems along with specialized instruments and laboratory equipment to help maintain the health of the animals.

and their environments.

In the midst of work that was demanding physically and intellectually, Fitch came to some conclusions about what he wants to take back to his classroom in August.

"I am going to have more of an ecological approach," he said. "In all my classes, even microbiology, we are going to spend more time outdoors, collecting and observing naturally occurring organisms."

The J.L. Scott Marine Education Center and Aquarium is part of the Southern Miss Gulf Coast Research Laboratory.

hapless swimmers. Soon, in the area of the incoming waves, the indented center of a large cusp is formed. To the side, where the rip action is, the displaced sand is carried by the current out to sea. The cusps of sand that are formed mirror the action and are elongated seaward. A straight beach develops will develop and almost mathematically precise series of cusps. Aerial views of straight beaches show these beautiful cusps in elegant series along the shoreline.

The current action I am talking about occurs in the Mississippi Sound. In fact, it is a ubiquitous part of the actions that form the patterns found all along our beach sands. Next time you walk along the beach, look at the sand pattern along the waters edge. There on a smaller scale, reflecting the reduced scale of the forces involved, lay series of cusps.

What has all this to do with mushrooms?

Well, the "T" we have been talking about is only straight at its head because it is hitting the relatively hard sandy beach. If it were hitting something only slightly denser than itself it would be a curve. That is, the left hand arm would curve so:

The right hand arm would curve the other way. I would show you but can't find the symbol on my laptop that goes the other way. So picture it as the left hand curving as above and the right hand curving to the right. To put it in a form you are familiar with, think of a mushroom. The shape of a mushroom has a nice sounding name in hydraulics and fluid dynamics, dipole eddy. Dipole eddies are found wherever two forces meet and have vast scales of energy exchanges. In fact, the mushroom is so shaped because of the actions involved in dipole eddies formation.

An interesting action of the rip current we see on beaches is that as the rip proceeds out to sea, it weakens and its leading edge, no longer able to maintain its integrity, abruptly moves to the right and left, forming a large dipole eddy beyond the incoming waves. If the swimmer caught in a rip seemingly being taken out to sea would wait a bit, he would find himself being carried back to shore but, alas, behind the big waves.

This dipole thing is a ubiquitous occurrence in all fluids. We see it everywhere and in everything fluid, from smoke to the flow of molasses. We unfortunately are all too well aware of its most prominent display in our own history of social exchange in that it forms the cloud of an atomic bomb.

Jenna Markham named 'Outstanding Citizen' at Legion's Girls' State

The 56th session of the American Legion Auxiliary's Magnolia Girls State wrapped up recently at The University of Southern Mississippi with the naming of two delegates to Girls Nation and the presentation of various awards and scholarships.

Holly Smith of Bogue Chitto and Jenna Markham of Pass Christian will represent Mississippi in mid-July in Washington. Girls Nation delegates are selected by senior counselors and staff following personal interviews in which they were asked about their knowledge of current events and those event's political implications, parliamentary procedure and their knowledge of the American Legion Auxiliary.

Outstanding Citizen awards were also presented. Winners in this category included Jenna Markham of Pass Christian.

More than 300 girls participated in the session, a week of hands-on activities designed to acquaint them with the inner-workings of politics and government. The program is sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary.

OUTSTANDING CITIZENS - Fifteen young women were selected as Outstanding Citizens during the American Legion Auxiliary's Girls State recently at The University of Southern Mississippi. ## Coast Electric sends two Hancock students to Washington, D.C.

THE SEA COAST ECHO
Coast Electric Power Association selected Deven Fejka and Ashley Gipson, students at Hancock High School, to participate in the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association Youth Tour in Washington, D.C. on June 14-20.

The two students were chosen based on essays explaining their views of how cooperatives have been successful business builders in today's world and their impact on future opportunities.

The Youth Tour is part of a comprehensive annual leadership development program for high school juniors provided annually by the Ridgeland-based Electric Power Associations of Mississippi.

Each June more than 1,200 high school juniors from across the nation join the Mississippi delegation to learn about the city, government, cooperatives and rural electrification. During the week-long trip, the students visited popular monuments and memorials, the nation's Capitol, the White House and much more. Fejka and Gipson had the opportunity to meet new and interesting young people and lifelong friendships were developed during the week. Coast Electric congratulates the two on their accomplishments and outstanding leadership skills.

Alicia Asper

OLA's Alicia Asper wins more awards, accolades

Alicia Asper, 2003 Valedictorian of Our Lady Academy, was named a semifinalist in the 2002-2003 Coca-Cola Scholars Program recently.

Asper was also a 2003 National Merit Scholar, OLA's 2003 STAR Student, President of OLA's Student Council, and editor-in-chief of the school newspaper.

During the past two summers, Asper traveled to Guatemala where she interned at an orphanage and to Panama where she gave relief ministry. As a participant in OLA's Service-Learning Program, she interned at the Sea Coast Echo for one term.

Because of her ongoing commitment to volunteer service, the Board of Directors of the Coca-Cola Scholars Foundation submitted her name to the Corporation for National and Community Service. Asper will be recognized by the President's Student Service Award program and will receive a certificate signed by President George W. Bush and a commemorative pin.

Asper plans to attend Messiah College where she received the Trustee Scholarship and will major in Spanish and politics with an emphasis in international relations.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

FOUR-FOOTED TRANSPORTATION

IN ANCIENT BIBLICAL TIMES HORSES AND CAMELS WERE A SURE MODE OF TRANSPORTATION. HOWEVER, HORSES WERE USED ONLY IN WARFARE, WHEREVER THE TERRAIN PERMITTED AND CHARIOTS COULD BE MANIPULATED. THE ISRAELITES HAD NO HORSES, PER SE, UNTIL THE REIGN OF DAVID. HE ESTABLISHED SOME CAVALRY BUT IT WAS KING SOLOMON WHO IMPORTED THEM FROM EGYPT IN VAST NUMBERS, PAYING ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY SHEKELS OF SILVER FOR EACH ANIMAL. (1 KINGS 10:28) ON THE OTHER HAND THE CAMEL COULD BE USED FOR TRANSPORTATION AND WAS VALUABLE AS A BEAST OF BURDEN, BEING CAPABLE OF CARRYING LOADS OF FOUR HUNDRED POUNDS OR OVER--ALSO THEIR LIFE SPAN WAS LONGER AND THEY WERE A SOURCE OF FOOD BECAUSE OF THEIR MILK. THE ISRAELITES KEPT CERTAIN HERDS OF CAMELS JUST FOR MILKING. GEN. 32:15 MENTIONS THIRTY MILCH (MILKING) CAMELS--ALSO THEIR HAIR WAS USED FOR TENT MATERIAL AND HEAVY OUTER GARMENTS. WITH ALL THESE ADVANTAGES ON THE SIDE OF THE CAMEL, SMALL WONDER IT WAS PREFERRED OVER THE HORSE!

Being right is

"I don't want to start an argument. I just want to explain why you are wrong."

That tongue-in-cheek desk sign speaks volumes in just a handful of words. To say that being right is an addiction is a harsh indictment; yet, it does not say enough. Obsession is at least one more word which must be used to describe the furious inner forces driving us to be right. Many times, even when we disclaim the loudest that we are not pushing to be right, we are.

It is downright scary to reflect how much energy, time and resources are consumed every day, every hour by people all around us - and by us - just trying to establish and confirm that we are right. Being right is perhaps the worst equal opportunity contagion which afflicts people of every origin, of every tongue, of every nation, of every sex, profession and condition.

But the tragic part of having to be right is not the addictive, obsessive, contagious elements, although they are certainly disgusting.

The real tragedy is the emotional, social and spiritual devastation and death left in the wake of those who constantly break a leg trying to right, even if it hurts others.

Why are we so deeply offended by people who always have to be right?

Because being right is an ego thing which covets superiority, even power over others at their expense and hurt. It gets under our skin, destroys our tender feelings toward others, erodes and eventually kills our relations.

Lusting to be right creates an attitude in us, a preconditioned stance which makes us very self-defensive and belligerent, even before we have heard what a person has to say. And, sad to say, quite often what a person is about to say does not concern criticism of us, and may even be affirming.

How many times do we see this type of attitude, preconditioned stance live around us and live on TV? Tick off in your mind the companies charged with accounting irregularities or outright fraud and theft over the past couple of years. A never-changing scenario has a spokesperson facing the cameras with a denial of all wrongdoing and a rationale for whatever seems awry.

One would think that the various companies and institutions can see what we see: how inherently stupid this whole charade always is. All they have to do is look at the firms in line ahead of them who are making spectacles of themselves by stonewalling, deluding themselves, denying and rationalizing.

This endless media parade of corporate stupidity and ethical bankruptcy should give us the overpower-

Reflections on Life
by Father Jerome

ing message of how we are not supposed to be, what we should not say, and how we should not act, particularly when others challenge us and attempt to correct what appears to be wrong in us.

At times the being right complex, or the not being wrong complex, turns deadly, as it did a quarter century ago when air line officials were warned about a defective back door of the Douglas DC-10 which seemed to be locked when it was not. Denial and stonewalling resulted in 365 needless deaths as the door of one of the huge, wide-bodied jets blew off over Turkey.

Unfortunately, hard documentation tells a sad tale of several other big jet crashes where the company brass denied the validity of charges concerning functional parts of their planes. Who knows why they do not see the idiocy of their antics which result in not saving face and in the needless loss of life.

As hard as it is to fess up, NASA has admitted through the back door that the two shuttle disasters simply did not have to be, and definitely should not have been. Eerily, in both cases, the launches were made amid lingering, serious misgivings of some of their top scientists.

While this is all well and good, these disasters are minor compared to the massive hemorrhaging wrought in our personal lives by our neurotic drive to be right, not to be wrong. It all begins, naturally, at the cradle level where few marriages would unravel if both spouses had the humility to swallow imperfections, gaffes and blunders in themselves and each other.

Of the hundreds of spousal quarrels I have refereed, often into the wee hours of the morning, it invariably comes down to the same proposition whether the spat seems to be over money, infidelity or a bad personality.

Who is right here? Who is wrong here? Who has the humility to forgive?

Even Pontius Pilate had his own take on being right according to what really is, and not according to what we fancy: "What is truth?" (John 18:38)

In our drive to be right, not to be wrong, do the facts get in the way of the truth? Is it really so important to be right that we risk alienating the tender feelings, rapport and allegiance of those closest to us to claim that status?

Paul answers the annoying dilemma of being wrong and weak in chapter 12 of his second letter to the Corinthians: "If I must boast of anything, I will boast of my weaknesses. When I am weak, then I am strong."

The "Word" for the Week
God's Commandments for Christians

Dennis J. Prutow • Box 303, Sterling, KS 67579

Those who are in favor of killing babies in the womb never call it murder. On the other hand, there is the moral law of God summarized in the Ten Commandments. This law is very unpopular.

After all, who does God think he is by imposing His standards of morality on us? This is the ultimate in arrogance! Man telling God what to do.

Many who call themselves Christians are of the same mentality. They really believe that the Ten Commandments are for a bygone era.

They use as a basis a verse in Romans 6:14 which says, "You are not under law, but under grace." But the Bible is not saying that the Ten Commandments are passed. The Bible is telling us that we do not earn our way to heaven by keeping the commandments.

We must trust in Jesus Christ. He lived a perfect life while on this earth. We must trust in His good works, not our own. We are all sinners. We need forgiveness. But those who are truly forgiven through faith in the sacrifice of Jesus Christ go on to display love for God.

They love God because God first loved them in the sacrifice of His Son. How do these people display their love for God? Listen: "This is the love of God, that we keep His commandments, and His commandments are not burdensome" (1 John 5:3).

On other words, you show God you love him by doing what he commands. If you think that God's commandments are too much of a burden, you are not a Christian.

Listen again, "The one who says, 'I have come to know him [that is God], and does not keep His commandments, is a liar'" (1 John 2:4).

Scripture Says . . .

By Ed Young

I think I am going to heaven because I am not a bad person. "Natural man's reasoning." I give to the poor and my church; I believe charitable acts helps me along the way to heaven. "Natural man's reasoning."

I do my best to keep the Ten Commandments to please God. "Natural man's reasoning."

I can truly say I am faithful to my wife and children; and am a morally good person. "Natural man's reasoning."

However, these things mention above all good in some ways or another. Nevertheless, they play no part in obtaining eternal life. The "Natural Human Reasoning" leads us to believe good works in the right path.

Unfortunately we are told from many a pulpit that you can work your way to heaven. That path is not a Natural Reasoning way. Here's the scripture.

"But the natural man receives not the things of the Spirit of God; for they are foolishness unto him, neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned. 1 Cor 2:14

In other words a person must have the Spirit of God in him to understand spiritual things. Such as, you hear people say that they would read the Bible, but they don't understand it. It's because the natural man does not discern the things of the Spirit of God.

So what can be done about this spiritual problem? One must have a spiritually awakening. Simply ask the Lord Jesus to give you the spirit of God. Ask and you shall receive. Please don't slumber your way into Hell!

Michael Shanks

Checking in With Michael Shanks

By Kate O'Hare
© Zap2it

After one season as a recurring character, Michael Shanks has returned full-time to Sci Fi Channel's "Stargate: SG-1," reprising his role of archaeologist Daniel Jackson in the show's seventh season.

"Stargate: SG-1" airs Fridays on Sci Fi, and in syndication (lagging one season behind the cable airing).

Based on the James Spader character in the 1994 movie, Shanks has managed to talk his way out of his predecessor's shaggy haircut. Unfortunately, he's still stuck with the eye-wear.

"Jackson doesn't really need the shaggy hair anymore, but the glasses ... I call it the character mask. And syndication calls it, 'No one will know who you are!'"

Jackson is part of a U.S. military team that uses alien-built Stargates to travel to distant worlds, but Shanks views the show as grounded.

"You see these people walk around a military base. It looks like 'JAG.' It's not until you see guys walking around in silver suits going 'Koo shak, koo tak-tak ta pa!' that you start going, 'What just happened?'"

Jackson also has come back to Earth, after spending last season "ascended" to a higher plane of being, living with the alien Ancients. When he was returned to normal life, it was without a memory of his heavenly sojourn. Now, says Shanks, it's up to his friends to keep his feet on the ground.

"They have to remind him of who he was, who he is, and he has to remind himself, over the course of the season."

"He gets his memory back of who Daniel Jackson was and what journey he was on, but he still has no memory of the Ancients or where he came from, a sort of heaven. That's somehow very convenient."

Featured Sci-Fi Channel's 'Alien Hunter' bags its audience

By Jacqueline Cutler
© Zap2it

Science-fiction fans know the drill. Scientists working in a remote area encounter alien life. They want to study it. The military wants to kill it. There's carnage, a glimpse of alien powers and in its wake, expanded knowledge.

Knowing all of this does not make Sci-Fi Channel's "Alien Hunter" on Saturday, July 19, any less satisfying. Despite lapses in logic, this film is a fine way to spend a Saturday night.

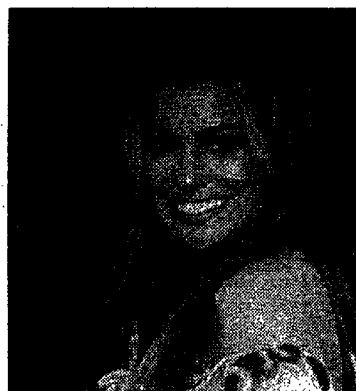

The movie opens, naturally, near Roswell, N.M., in 1947. A ham-radio operator is communicating with another, and the airwaves get weird. His dog whines about unseen trouble.

Sure enough, he drives around the desert, searching for what's wrong, and encounters what looks like a burning giant mollusk.

The next scene, set today, is a nod to the 1951 classic "The Thing," where scientists working in Antarctic bunkers discover an unidentified mass encased in ice, moving and emitting waves. Scientists around the country pick up on its existence, but somehow the government is involved until it sends shadowy agents in suits to the scene.

Our hero, Julian Rome (James Spader), is a professor of linguistics who was dumped from a top-secret alien-hunter program. He's a serial dater of students whose skills include decoding alien chatter via computer.

Rome talks his way into the Antarctic lab, where they have the huge mollusklike object on ice. It melts, giving off deadly electrical waves. Those who don't immediately succumb stay and fight among themselves.

Carmen Electra says of her fellow judge on "Dance Fever," premiering Sunday, July 13, on ABC Family. "I would try to learn the moves in my living room, the same as I would do with the original 'Dance Fever' when I was younger."

If only all royals were good. Many, however, used their fame to do whatever they wanted as PBS proves in "The Six Wives of Henry VIII" Wednesday. "We are in an age of prurience and people enjoy knowing everything," host David Starkey says. "It's a Hillary and Bill thing. The royals are the original celebrities."

New contestants get 'Dance Fever' in ABC Family revival

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

The moves might change, but dancing never goes out of style.

Neither, evidently, does a TV series that celebrates it. "Dance Fever" initially sprang from the popularity of the disco-themed movie "Saturday Night Fever" and ran in syndication from 1979 to 1987.

ABC Family Channel ups the current reality-show ante by launching a new version of the contest with a two-hour premiere Sunday, July 13, and it's a sign of the times that the top prize has doubled. The first time around, each season's winners could receive as much as $50,000; now, a grand prize of $100,000 will go to the victorious individual or team.

Created by entertainment veteran Merv Griffin, who remains an executive producer of the show, "Dance Fever" offers MTV alumnus Eric Nies ("The Grind," "The Real World") as host of its new incarnation. Once the field of light-on-their-feet hopefuls is narrowed to 48 finalists, they'll be judged "American Idol"-style at the MGM Grand in Las Vegas by a panel consisting of actress and sometimes dancer Carmen Electra ("Baywatch," "Scary Movie"), Grammy-winning star MC Hammer, and director and choreographer Jamie King.

"I was just a little girl when the original show was on," Electra reflects, "and I would always watch it with my mom. I used to be in a lot of dance competitions, so Mom would watch the show to get ideas for costumes for me. She was an amazing seamstress." The young Electra - then living in Cincinnati under her real name, Tara Leigh Patrick - got her own ideas from watching "Dance Fever," so she comes full-circle with her new role. "I've always wanted to be a judge," she says, "just because I was in so many competitions. I knew what a powerful position it was.

"When you're out there performing and you really want to win, it's hard and it's scary. To be perfectly honest, I wish I hadn't been put in that position as a young girl. When you don't win, the feelings you experience are really tough." That's why Electra isn't planning to emulate "American Idol" judge Simon Cowell's scathing critiques of the amateur dancers, nor does she suspect her fellow judges are. She prefers to keep the comments constructive. "We definitely have an eye for dance, and when you've been around it so much, you know what to look for. I've gotten back to dancing, in fact, in the group called the Pussycat Dolls."

Still a TV-industry tycoon thanks to two of his other productions, the enduring game shows "Jeopardy!" and "Wheel of Fortune," Griffin is pleased that "Dance Fever" is getting a new life. He admits, though, that he "never really considered it much. Since the original show, dance has really changed. It was mainly confined to discotheques then, and that's the style we presented. I had spun off the show from my talk show, on which I held the first national disco contest.

"I got help in that," Griffin notes, "from Neil Bogart, who ran Casablanca Records, the label that had all the big disco artists like Donna Summer and Village People. His distributors all over America picked contestants from their areas, I flew them to California, and the resulting episode got the highest single-night ratings 'The Merv Griffin Show' ever had. I turned that into 'Dance Fever,' which lasted nearly a decade."

The show will be more than disco this time. "It's taking on every dance style from hip-hop to swing, with maybe the occasional disco dancer," says Griffin, whose partner in producing the new "Dance Fever" is "Meet My Folks" mentor

Television veteran Merv Griffin continues as an executive producer of "Dance Fever," which is returning to the home screen as an ABC Family Channel series that begins with a two-hour premiere Sunday.

Bruce Nash. "There will also be a lot of salsa, quite a lot of Latin, so it has a whole new flavor. Also, we have the luxury of being on for more than a half-hour this time, so we've got cameras out all over the United States to show who the dancers are and how they were picked."

The fiancée of musician Dave Navarro (late of Red Hot Chili Peppers), Electra maintains she's "a really sensitive person," so she hopes to be encouraging with the opinions she gives on "Dance Fever." She reasons, "Technique is so important in dance, I guess it's like anything else. If you study and practice every day, you're just going to get better and better, so it all starts with your background. Then it's a matter of how enthusiastic you are, how much personality you put into your moves. We'll probably be looking for everything in a contestant."

Romano changed names of 'Raymond' twins

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Q In the very first episode of "Everybody Loves Raymond," the twins were named Matthew and Gregory, but then their names were changed to Michael and Jeffrey. Why? -Clarice Brown, Baltimore.

A It's not unusual for creative changes to take place between the time a series pilot is filmed and when the show actually goes into production several weeks (or even months) later. When the pilot for "Raymond" was filmed, the three Barone kids bore the actual names of star Ray Romano's real children: Alexandra (Ally), Matthew and Gregory. By the time production started, however, Romano became concerned that art was imitating life a bit too closely and asked that the twins' names be changed. Ally's name was kept, perhaps because it was more prominent in the pilot and a change would have been more jarring.

By the way, other viewers have noticed that the twins were actually played by different kids in the pilot episode. Series creator Phil Rosenthal says those original tots were visibly older by the time production started, so he hired the real-life twin brothers of Madylin Sweeten (Ally). They have played Michael and Jeffrey ever since.

Q I recently heard that Trevor Goddard, who played Mic Brumby on "JAG," had died. How did this terrible tragedy happen? -Anita Dalphond, Franklin Park, Ill.

A A girlfriend of the 37-year-old actor found him dead of an apparent drug overdose in his North Hollywood home on June 8. Investigators were treating the death as a possible suicide. Although Goddard reportedly left no farewell note, news stories noted that the actor had been in the middle of a divorce and custody battle over his two sons.

In addition to his "JAG" appearances, Goddard also appeared with a kangaroo in a popular TV commercial for Hoover's Floor Mate vacuum cleaner. He also plays an undead buccaneer in the new Disney movie "Pirates of the Caribbean: The Curse of the Black Pearl," which was scheduled to open on July 11.

Q I really enjoyed "American Idol." What nationality is judge Paula Abdul? -Robbie H., Eva, Ala.

A Abdul, who recently turned 40, was born in San Fernando, Calif., of Syrian-Brazilian and French-Canadian heritage.

A frog turns into a prince and meets a maiden in Manhattan

By Jacqueline Cutler
© Zap2it

The wonderful thing about fairy tales is that when told right, they appeal to all ages and can work in any era. Ideally, TNT's "Prince Charming," on Sunday, July 13, would fit that bill.

The story is the well-known tale of the prince turned into a frog, who can only revert to his Royal Highness when a maiden kisses him. The twist here is that though the movie starts in a fictional European land in the 15th century, the bulk of it unwinds in Manhattan today.

The standard device of the time traveler holding on to his quaint ways in a modern era works just fine with this talented cast.

Broadway diva Bernadette Peters ("Gypsy") is wonderful as Margo, a stage star intent on playing roles for which she's too old. Billy Connolly ("Mrs. Brown") plays Hamish, her tomcat lover who refuses to marry her. Martin Short ("Primetime Glick") is wacky as Rodney, a hapless wizard and squire to the prince. Andrea Martin ("My Big Fat Greek Life") is just the right amount of kooky as Serena, Rodney's love interest.

The handsome and dashing Sean Maguire ("Out of Depth") looks as if he were born for the role of Prince John. And Christina Applegate ("Jesse") is briefly the princess, then centuries later, sweet and savvy Kate, a Central Park horse-drawn cab driver.

With this timeless tale and an excellent ensemble, this should be a fine way for a family to spend a Sunday night. However, parents should be warned because the movie hinges on a concept some may find offensive. Prince John is quite the ladies' man, and his royal chamber is rarely bereft of lasses.

While being heralded into the court of the princess he is about to wed, he notices a damsel in distress. The chivalrous prince leaps from his horse and chases the brigands who snatched a maiden from the throng of cheering peasants. He races up the bell tower, fights the dastards and, naturally, wins. The woman is so grateful, she drops her frock and succumbs to his charms.

While there is no nudity in the ensuing scene, the sound of the bell ringing faster and faster - apparently because the amorous couple is bumping against it - leaves little to the imagination.

But this is why the prince is turned into a frog, and it is explained in a scene where Prince John is put before the court to determine his fate. Alas! His destiny is to be "frogged," as they say in ye olde court. His squire goes amphibian with him. And the curse is expanded so not only must he be kissed, but the woman who does must also marry him quickly.

And so the centuries pass. The duo wind up in the middle of Manhattan, and Kate takes pity on them, removing them from a busy street and placing them in Central Park.

The park is the backdrop for the movie's lovelier scenes featuring its castle. The park also hosts the film's worst scenes, when the prince and his squire, still frogs, chat. Passers-by cannot hear them, and viewers will wish they were as lucky.

Credit the special-effects people who managed to create verbose frogs that do not resemble the Budweiser frogs. Still, watching Prince John and Rodney get drunk as frogs is not a career highlight for anyone involved.

Yet when the stars discuss this movie - which wrapped at the end of 2000 but was delayed because of soft advertising, according to a TNT spokeswoman - they speak of it as a career highlight.

"I really drove a hansom cab just through Central Park on a beautiful day," Applegate says. "The whole shoot was amazing. It was the best time I ever had in a work experience."

Connolly and Short, known for being just as funny off camera, had Applegate in hysterics. "I laughed so hard, I actually did wet my pants - twice," she says. "And Sean is a stud muffin ... I have gotten to do this Shakespeare festival in L.A. with him, and he is the only one who sounds authentic. The rest of us sound like we are mocking Shakespeare."

Just as Applegate says she loved wearing the period costumes, Maguire says he had longed to play such a role. "It was so much fun from a boy's perspective," he says. "I just got to do so much fun stuff, like learning to ride and sword fight. I had never done the animation side before."

Maguire threw himself so completely into the role that he broke his arm. Coming to the aid of a modern damsel in distress, Prince John chases a thief who stole her bicycle. "Even though it was just a pretend character, I wanted to be as dashing and knightly as possible," Maguire says. "And in my attempt to be Errol Flynn-esque, I ran a little too far as my little legs could carry me."

That accident does not detract from his fondness for the film. "I have a piece of metal in my wrist, so I will have a lifetime memento," he says. "This film will, literally, always be a part of me."

Applegate says she hopes it can be a part of viewers, too. "I hope the audience can feel the fun we were having, and be taken away into a fairy tale that makes you feel good," she says. "In the end, no matter what, everything is good. You pretty much know how it ends."

Henry VIII's six wives take reality shows to a new level

When stations promote shows, they usually go overboard. PBS' "The Six Wives of Henry VIII" Wednesdays, July 16 and 23 (check local listings) is touted as "reality shows before there was television," and is a soft sell.

The life of Henry VIII, ruler from 1509-1547, makes reality shows and their predecessors in prurience - shock talk shows - pale in comparison. Behind those ornate castles was a world of lust, betrayal, lies and murder.

The four-hour, two-part series is quite wonderful, though it would be easier to digest in four one-hour segments. Painsstakingly researched and presented in an intelligent and interesting way, actors portray the royals, though they do not engage in dialogue. Rather, the narrator explains the history as it unfolds on screen. Hosted by Cambridge University historian and author David Starkey, the series takes viewers into the queens' chambers, showing what life was like for these 16th-century women.

Starkey worked on this series for four years, and he equates the fascination with the six wives to the brouhaha over the Clintons. "It is a private marriage with enormous public implications," Starkey says via cell phone from outside Greenwich Castle. "Why do we get all excited about Bill and Hill? I can tell you it's a good deal more interesting than a cigar."

"It is a perfect soap opera," he says. "The great thing about the Tudors is they are the English Greek myths."

The series, which was a huge hit in Great Britain, could use a bit of doctoring for the Yanks. Granted, this is a PBS audience, but it wouldn't hurt to explain what a lady-in-waiting does, why the kingdom is obsessed with the mating habits of its rulers (it's all about progeny), and how the ladies of the court came to be Henry's personal escort service.

However, these are minor concerns. Brewing a pot of tea and settling in to watch Catherine of Aragon plead with the pope's envoy not to allow her husband to divorce her is drama at its best. Second wife, sassy Anne Boleyn, is such a conniving other woman, and the archetype for a nasty stepmother, that it is pretty difficult to muster up sympathy when the blade nears her neck.

Henry wasn't a stranger to rebound romances. Jane Seymour, who was Anne Boleyn's lady-in-waiting, was meek - though not such a mouse, Starkey notes, because she helped engineer Boleyn's downfall. Seymour produced what Henry wanted - a male heir - then died soon after. The next wife, Anne of Cleves, was dismissed because Henry was not sexually attracted to her. No dummy, she accepted his divorce, received two castles, and retained her head.

Then, Henry was drawn to a winsome teen, Catherine Howard, who had affairs before and - her deadly mistake - after Henry. Her suitors were hanged and disemboweled. The night before she was beheaded, she practiced putting her head on the chopping block. Here is more proof the series trumps reality shows - even executions are tasteful.

Henry's final queen, Catherine Parr, who became his widow, was not keen to marry the old, fat king with a lousy track record as a husband. Yet, she thought it her duty to God. Just as she was about to meet her untimely fate as a heretic, she saved herself.

Were this a feature film, the costumes would receive Oscar nods. As it is, this is PBS at its best - taking us to new, or in this case, very old places.

Julia Marsen portrays Anne Boleyn, Henry VIII's second queen who was lauded by her friends but completely despised by her enemies, and whose marriage to the king is re-enacted in PBS' "The Six Wives of Henry VIII," premiering Wednesday and concluding July 23.

Rule changes make 74th All-Star Game historic

By George Dickie

© Zap2it

Last year's All-Star Game had all the components that make for a memorable Midsummer Classic.

It had good hitting (home runs by Barry Bonds and Alfonso Soriano; a record-tying two doubles each from Damian Miller and Paul Konerko), good pitching (National League starter Curt Schilling threw 24 of his 28 pitches for strikes, many at over 100 mph) and spectacular plays (Torii Hunter's leaping catch of a certain Bonds home run).

It only lacked one thing: a winner. After 11 innings and with the game tied 7-7, managers Bob Brenly and Joe Torre had used their entire 30-man rosters. The only thing left to do, in the minds of the managers, umpires and Commissioner Bud Selig, was to end the game.

Fans at Milwaukee's Miller Park booed and chanted, "Let them play!" and Selig and Major League Baseball took a fair amount of criticism for the inconclusive outcome, only the second tie in All-Star Game history (the first was in 1961). All in all, it proved to be a disappointing ending to an All-Star Game that many agreed was the most competitive in years.

But was it really the embarrassment that it's been made out to be? Fox baseball analyst Tim McCarver considers the question. "I don't think so," says McCarver, who will join Joe Buck in the booth at U.S. Cellular Field in Chicago for the network's broadcast of the 74th All-Star Game on Tuesday, July 15. "It was a little frustrating and upsetting initially, but then after that, there are, I'm sure, more than one school of thought on that. Being there, the people were upset that night, but I think they more or less understood it when the explanation came out. I think they knew the explanation to begin with, but they just wanted to see the game to its completion. And I don't blame them. But I think that's gone, and I think what helped ease the pain is the adjustment this year that they made."

The adjustment to which McCarver is referring is the much-criticized two-year experiment that links the outcome of the All-Star Game to the World Series, where the winning league in the former gets to host a potential four of seven games in the latter. "I think it's worth a shot," McCarver says. "I mean, I know the so-called people who say they're the only ones who care about the game come out and make comments about what a foolish idea this is and everything, and that really the team with the best record should be the team (with home-field advantage in) the World Series."

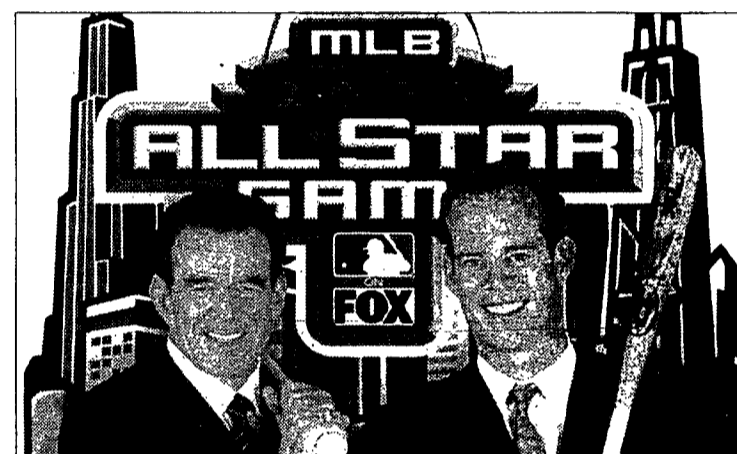

"I don't necessarily disagree with that," McCarver continues. "But where were these same people before this most recent decision was made? In other words, a decision was made with the help of television - there's no question about it. I mean, we wanted more incentive - our ratings have been going down, so we wanted more incentive. Who's kidding whom? But you know, prior to this decision being made, I don't remember hearing any outcry by people, saying that the team with the best record should get the home-field advantage in the World Series."

"The only time they make the outcry is when there's a revision suggested, and the revision was taken up by the Players Association, and they said, 'Why not?' And really, why not?"

Another change, aimed at forestalling the problems of last year, is the expanding of All-Star rosters to 32 players, a move that McCarver applauds. "I thought for 25 years that ... there aren't enough players on the rosters," he says. "Why should managers be under the pressure of trying to play everybody and then running out of players. I always thought it was nuts."

How does McCarver think fans will take to the new rules? "I don't think the fans are jumping up and down and saying that, 'Hey, this is great!' I think they'll probably look at it and say, 'Hmmm. Hmmm. Well, why not?' That's what I think. I mean, there are some fans you have to educate, and I think we're trying to do that with promos, and ultimately fans will know, obviously, why this All-Star Game is different. But I mean, why not? That's my thinking. But I'm still more concerned with the way the game is played, and while realizing at the same time that it is still an exhibition game."

"Women's Soccer" Sunday, July 13 (ESPN, 4 p.m. ET): Players competing for a spot on the U.S. Women's World Cup team get their last chance to impress today when the United States faces Brazil in New Orleans. U.S. head coach April Heinrichs will then formulate the 20-player roster that will compete in September's World Cup. The national team is 8-1-3 thus far this year, and longtime stars such as Mia Hamm and Brandi Chastain continue to make contributions toward that success.

"2003 ESPY Awards" Wednesday, July 16 (ESPN, 9 p.m. ET): Fans have a habit of voicing their opinions at sporting events, so their first-time involvement in picking various ESPY winners this year is fitting. Actor-comedian Jamie Foxx presides over the 11th annual gathering, which honors the best in sports from 2002. Nominees include Serena Williams, Barry Bonds, Tiger Woods and Mario Lemieux, and a not-yet-announced winner will receive the Arthur Ashe Courage Award.

"British Open, First Round" Thursday, July 17 (TNT, 7 a.m. ET): Stiff competition awaits Ernie Els when the South African begins defense of his British Open championship today from Royal St. George's Golf Club in Sandwich, England. Forty-eight of the top-50 players in the world are scheduled to tee off, including 2001 British champ Tiger Woods and this year's Masters winner, Mike Weir. Also on hand are a couple of old pros, Greg Norman and Sandy Lyle, the last two Open winners at St. George's.

Three one-hour episodes, airing back-to-back, take viewers 14,000 years back in time to the end of the last Ice Age to reveal what the Great Plains and the mountains of California would have looked like, and what animals would have lived there. David Mamet abandoned his usual profanity-laced dialogue to write this 1999 drama, which he also directed. Set in pre-World War I London and based on a fact-inspired play by Terence Rattigan, it's the story of a father (Nigel Hawthorne) who literally bets the homestead on the word of his younger son (Guy Edwards), who's been expelled from naval college on a charge of theft.

In 1968, director Franco Zeffirelli broke with centuries of theater tradition by casting teenagers in the roles of Shakespeare's young lovers. Leonard Whiting and Olivia Hussey play the couple kept apart by feuding families. Although the text of the play is relatively intact, be warned that there are flashes of nudity. Also, the youth of the leads emphasizes the impulsive and disastrous choices of the characters, which can spark debate with today's teens.

Movie: Spider-Man

The Marvel comic book comes to life in this 2002 adventure starring Tobey Maguire as high-schooler Peter Parker, who is bitten by a radioactive spider and acquires super powers. But, as any Spidey fan knows, the socially inept Parker has a rough time coming to terms with his new abilities, which indirectly cause a family tragedy. Rosemary Harris and Cliff Robertson play Peter's aunt and uncle, with Kirsten Dunst as the girl he loves. James Franco and Willem Dafoe co-star.

Movie: American Graffiti

Director George Lucas' marvelously nostalgic 1973 comedy, about an eventful night for some 1962 California teens, was a great showcase for then-budding stars, including Richard Dreyfuss, Cindy Williams, Candy Clark, Mackenzie Phillips and Harrison Ford (in a brief but memorable appearance). The oldies-packed soundtrack is great; Ron Howard and disc jockey Wolfman Jack also appear.

TV Trivia

Sean Maguire ("Prince Charming") made his acting debut at age 5 in "A Voyage Around My Father" with Sir Laurence Olivier.

Betty White ("Biography") recently had a Romantica rose named in her honor, which officially will be released next year.

Carmen Electra ("Dance Fever") appeared in Playboy in a nude celebrities issue as well as a solo pictorial in 2003.

Nelly ("MTV Bash") influenced two trends - donning sports jerseys backward and wearing a Band-Aid on each cheek.

Dixie Carter ("Designing Women Reunion") had her daughters, Mary Dixie Carter and Ginna Carter, play her nieces on the sitcom.

6 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC
Movie: The New Swiss Family Robinson

And she thought a frontier doctor's life was hard! Jane Seymour ("Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman") and her husband, James Keach, star in this adaptation of the Johann David Wyss classic about a shipwrecked family. The Robinsons have more than the elements to deal with after the wreck, since the man who sold them their boat is chasing them. David Caradine also stars in the 1999 adventure.

7 p.m. and DSC
Prehistoric America

Take a good look around you, then imagine how the same surroundings would have looked 14,000 years ago. This new special, comprised of three hourlong installments (starting with "The Frozen North"), uses present-day information to generate views of specific regions of North America and the wildlife as it existed at the end of the Ice Age. The Great Plains and California's mountains are among the locations visited.

7 p.m. and TNT
Movie: Prince Charming

A classic fantasy is updated in this new TV movie set in contemporary New York. Sean Maguire ("Off Centre") stars as a prince who suffers for dallying with a distressed damsel on his wedding day. He and his squire (Martin Short) are turned into frogs and will remain so until the prince kisses a woman and then marries her. A stage diva (Bernadette Peters) can help him, but he falls for another maiden (Christina Applegate).

8 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

Malcolm in the Middle

Malcolm (Frankie Muniz) gets an unsettling glimpse of his possible future in "Future Malcolm." He meets a chess genius (guest star Jason Alexander) who seems to have no social life whatsoever, and Malcolm fears his own smarts may destine him for the same fate. Trying to ward off such an adulthood, Malcolm attempts to open up the chess master to new experiences.

8 p.m. on 19-PBS

Mystery!

The host of this anthology series, Diana Rigg ("The Avengers"), doubles as a actress on it in several new "Mrs. Bradley Mysteries" based on stories by Gladys Mitchell. The first caper, "Death at the Opera," takes Mrs. Bradley and her chauffeur (Neil Dudgeon) to her esteemed alma mater to probe a murder. Many of the faculty members, along with much of the student body, have dark secrets to hide.

Slezak reflects on over three decades of 'Life'

By Candace Havens
© Zap2it

On Wednesday, July 16, the daytime soap "One Life to Live" celebrates 35 years of broadcasting on ABC. The anniversary special focuses on the relationship between characters Natalie Buchanan (Melissa Archer) and Cristian Vega (David Fumero), and their upcoming nuptials.

He wants a small family wedding; she wants a big affair with the whole town involved. As the two dream about what they want, the show flashes back to many weddings and events from the last 35 years.

One woman who has seen it all is Emmy-winning actress Erika Slezak, who plays Natalie's mother, Victoria Lord, and has been a series regular on "OLTL" for more than 32 years.

Her first day on the set was no different than it is for many newcomers today.

"I was so scared," Slezak recalls. "I'd done theater but never television. I wondered when someone would realize that I couldn't do this and they would ask me to leave."

Slezak had been hired the day prior to her first shoot, so she had little time to prepare or be nervous. She also didn't know she was replacing another actress.

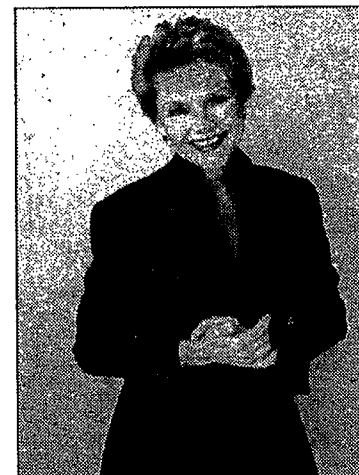

"As I met people that morning, they asked what role I played and I told them Dorian, and they would tell me, 'No, no, that can't be right.' No one knew the other actress had been fired. So, it was an uncomfortable situation there at the beginning."

The actress has a great appreciation for her character and the trials and tribulations she's gone through, but she isn't sure Viki is someone with whom she'd spend time on a regular basis.

"I'd like to know her, but I can't say I would like to hang out with her," Slezak laughs. "She's very bright and concerned with right and wrong. I honestly think I'd be a little intimidated by her. She's a bit up there."

When she looks back, Slezak is proud of the work she's done. "I'm kind of amazed over the years at the stories we've told, the characters I've worked with on the show and where the show has gone," she says.

Tuesday Best Bets

7 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

MLB Baseball

The All-Star Game will have a different feel this year. To spice up what had become an ordinary event, baseball recently implemented changes that include a two-year experiment in which the winning league gets home-field advantage in the World Series. Rosters also have been expanded in an effort to avoid an embarrassing tie like last year. Joe Buck and Tim McCarver call the game from U.S. Cellular Field in Chicago.

7 p.m. on 38-WB

Gilmore Girls

A practiced schemer (guest star Emily Bergl, "The Rage: Carrie 2") makes Paris (Liza Weil) believe Rory (Alexis Bledel) is being deceptive in "I Solemnly Swear." Lorelai (Lauren Graham) must get her mind off a man (guest star Michael Weaver) she met at a seminar when she's called to give a deposition after Emily (Kelly Bishop) is sued by an ex-employee.

7 p.m. on 19-PBS

History Detectives

The legend of gangsters Bonnie Parker and Clyde Barrow is revisited in Part 2 of this new miniseries, as the program's experts visit a Wisconsin woman who has bullets that may have killed the Depression-era lovers and robbers. Another Wisconsin town is the site of what might have been the United States' first major movie showplace. Then it's on to Akron, Ohio, where a couple is living in a home that may have been built by Sears, Roebuck and Co.

8 p.m. on 38-WB

Smallville

Hardly anyone in the town behaves normally while under the influence of a strange flower in "Nicomachus." In one of the most startling examples, Lana (Kristin Kreuk) begins aggressively pursuing Clark (Tom Welling), who is determined to find out how Lex (Michael Rosenbaum) is involved in the sudden breakdown of everyone's inhibitions. The phenomenon ultimately could prove lethal to everyone affected by it.

8 p.m. on 54-UPN

Buffy the Vampire Slayer

Buffy's (Sarah Michelle Gellar) night amounts to more than her dinner engagement with Principal Wood (guest star DB Woodside) in "First Date." She has to leave her meal behind to rescue Xander (Nicholas Brendon), who doesn't bargain on the surprising twists to his date with a mysterious woman (singer Ashanti). Giles and Spike (Anthony Stewart Head, James Marsters) monitor the progress of the Slayers-in-training.

9 p.m. on 26-ABC

NYPD Blue

Clark (Mark-Paul Gosselaar) is on the other side of the law when he's found in possession of heroin in "Arrested Development." Certain his partner was set up, Sipowicz (Dennis Franz) tries to find out who's responsible. Reputed to have been difficult to live with, a housewife suffers a gruesome beating death. Residing with Sipowicz and Connie has a negative effect on Theo (Austin Majors).

9 p.m. on 4-CBS

Judging Amy

Series regular Tyne Daly is reunited with her former "Cagney & Lacey" partner, Sharon Gless, in "Maxine, Interrupted." Seen lately in the Showtime series "Queer as Folk," Gless guest stars as a social services supervisor who follows up on complaints lodged against Maxine (Daly). Bruce (Richard T. Jones) deals with married senior citizens (Maxine Stuart, Harold Gould) who want a divorce.

9 p.m. on 19-PBS

Flashpoints U.S.A. With Bryant Gumbel and Gwen Ifill

Gumbel returns to broadcast television to co-host this new public-affairs series with NBC News alumna Ifill. The program focuses on issues that could divide Americans, particularly localized situations that have national implications. The debut episode, "The Sacrifices of Security," surveys the impact of post-9/11 protective measures on civil liberties.

9 p.m. and BRAV

Queer Eye for the Straight Guy

This new series features gay experts in various fields offering tips on attaining goals such as landing a woman or a job. In each episode, a straight man gets a makeover from five authorities who advise him on fashion, grooming, culture and the like. At the hour's end, the subject learns whether he gets their stamp of approval.

History Detectives

Several wonders of New England fuel Part 3 of this new miniseries. In Mystic, Conn., the experts visit a whaling ship that may have been pivotal to the Underground Railroad. A jigsaw puzzle's picture suggests that women played contact sports in the early 20th century.

7 p.m. on 54-UPN

Thursday Best Bets

7 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

The Disco Ball

Many of the top music acts of the 1970s are back in the spotlight in a special taped at the Shrine Auditorium in Los Angeles. KC and the Sunshine Band ("Get Down Tonight"), Gloria Gaynor ("I Will Survive"), Chic ("Le Freak") and Village People ("YMCA") are among the performers on a set designed to evoke a '70s discotheque. Paula Abdul, George Lopez and other celebrities introduce the singers.

7 p.m. and BRAV

Movie: Jacob's Ladder

In this decidedly bizarre 1990 melodrama from director Adrian Lyne ("Fatal Attraction") and screenwriter Bruce Joel Rubin ("Ghost"), a Vietnam veteran (Tim Robbins) begins to have terrifying, surreal visions that suggest he might be living in an alternative world. Danny Aiello, Elizabeth Pena, Jason Alexander and Eric La Salle ("ER") co-star — but the visual effects steal the show.

7:45 p.m. on 6-NBC

Will & Grace

Gene Wilder ("Young Frankenstein," "Blazing Saddles") makes a rare TV appearance as Will's (Eric McCormack) new boss in "Boardroom and a Parked Place." He immediately interferes in Will's life by ordering him to fire a co-worker. Grace and Jack (Debra Messing, Sean Hayes) are shocked to learn of Karen's (Megan Mullally) financial straits.

8 p.m. on 19-PBS

History Detectives

A possible portrait of George Washington is investigated in Frederick, Md., in Part 4 of this new miniseries. The picture has been passed down through many generations of one family, and it could prove quite valuable. Another Maryland clan's dwelling is suspected to be the home of a slave trader who kidnapped free men. Then, the program moves to Bucks County, Pa., where a trumpet may be an artifact from the Revolutionary War.

Friday Best Bets

7 p.m. on FAM

Movie: Stuart Little

Michael J. Fox provides the voice of the title character in this charming 1999 adaptation of E.B. White's children's book. A couple (Geena Davis, Hugh Laurie) in search of a brother for their little boy (Jonathan Lipnicki) meet Stuart at an orphanage and fall in love with him, though he happens to be a mouse. He fits right in with his new family, but the family cat (voice of Nathan Lane) takes a while to think of him as a master, not a meal.

7 p.m. on TNT

Movie: You've Got Mail

The 1940's film "The Shop Around the Corner" is updated for the digital age in this 1998 romantic comedy. Tom Hanks and Meg Ryan ("Sleepless in Seattle") star as business rivals having an online romance, not knowing that the objects of their respective affections are each other. Parker Posey, Greg Kinnear and Jean Stapleton also star.

7:30 p.m. on 38-WB

What I Like About You

Holly (Amanda Bynes) gets in over her head while pursuing a handsome co-worker (guest star Kyle Howard) in "The Party." Their cell phones get mixed up, and in trying to get the mix straightened out, he invites her over. She's unaware that he's at a college party, and once Holly joins him, it may take Val (Jennie Garth) to keep her out of trouble.

8 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

Boston Public

Last year's "American Idol" finalists have gone different ways since the competition ended, and the only one to land a stint on another TV series — so far, anyway — is one of judge Simon Cowell's favorites, Tamyra Gray. She begins an extended run in "Chapter Fifty-Eight," and she certainly gets to sing: She plays the star of the school musical.

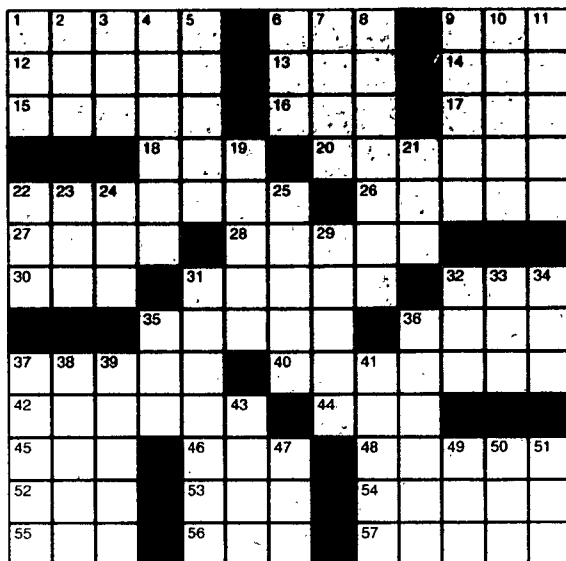

9 p.m. on 6-NBC

Law & Order: Special Victims Unit

Four murders result from an engagement dinner in "Dominance." Evidence indicates the killer wanted to prove his power over his victims before they were slain, and time is of the essence as Benson and Stabler (Mariska Hargitay, Christopher Meloni) race to stop the felon before he can target more members of the upper class.

Saturday Best Bets

7 p.m. and AMC

Movie: The Return of the Pink Panther

The catastrophically feckless Inspector Clouseau (Peter Sellers), the most beguiling French detective ever to walk into a wall, is revived by writer-director Blake Edwards in this 1975 comedy. Clouseau tracks down a jewel thief, matches wits with his houseboy (Burt Kwouk), and adds several dozen nervous tics to the face of his chief inspector (Herbert Lom). Christopher Plummer co-stars, and Henry Mancini again supplies the music.

7 p.m. on TBS

Movie: Austin Powers: International Man of Mystery

Oh, behave! This 1997 comedy stars Mike Myers as both suave secret agent Powers and his nemesis, Dr. Evil, who emerge from a 30-year cryogenic nap to resume their feud in the 1990s. Seth Green, ("The Italian Job") is a treat as Dr. Evil's son, a test-tube baby fighting the pressure to follow in Dad's footsteps. Robert Wagner, Elizabeth Hurley, Michael York and Mimi Rogers also star.

7 p.m. on HBO

Movie: Mr. Deeds

Adam Sandler reworks the film classic "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" to fit his comedic persona in this 2002 update. He plays a bumpkin who inherits a media empire and leaves his pizza parlor to assume a more lavish lifestyle. Of course, there are people determined to get him out of the picture as quickly as possible.

7:30 p.m. on USA

Movie: Clear and Present Danger

Harrison Ford reprises his role as Jack Ryan, a CIA agent who becomes entangled in political double-dealing when he is unexpectedly called in to replace the agency's chief (James Earl Jones). Fast-paced action, a sly script and Ford's admirable performance make this 1994 adaptation of a Tom Clancy novel a real audience pleaser. Willem Dafoe and Anne Archer also star.

9 p.m. on 4-CBS

The District

All of the victims in a serial murder spree have a common link in "Bloodlines": They were all African-Americans who were in interracial relationships. Evidence at the scene of one of the crimes indicates the killer has sickle cell anemia. Ella (Lynne Thigpen) may provide the key to determining the felon's identity.

(Ratings for each film begin with a "star" rating - one star meaning "poor," four meaning "excellent" - followed by the Motion Picture Association of America rating, and then by a family-viewing guide, the key for which appears below.)

STARTING THIS WEEK (New releases):

"SHANGHAI KNIGHTS": Though anyone who saw "Shanghai Noon" will know what they're getting into with this sequel, Jackie Chan and Owen Wilson remain an agreeable starring duo, and the result is as fun as the original. After his father is murdered in late-19th-century China, Chon Wang (Chan) retrieves his comrade Roy (Wilson) in New York and takes him to England, where they seek revenge and try to stop the chief villain's (Aidan Gillen) larger scheme of assassinating the entire royal family. DVD extras: audio commentaries by director David Dobkin and writer Alfred Gough; deleted scenes; montage of action sequences; photo gallery. *** (PG-13: P, V)

"GODS & GENERALS": Many of the creative forces behind "Gettysburg" reunite for another Civil War epic that certainly doesn't stint on length, running just over 3 1/2 hours. A pet project of producer Ted Turner, who also appears in the film (very briefly), the authentically re-created saga traces the efforts of General Thomas "Stonewall" Jackson (played by Stephen Lang) to lead the Confederacy to victory. Robert Duvall portrays General Robert E. Lee in a huge cast that also includes Jeff Daniels, Mira Sorvino, Kevin Conway and C.

Video Vantage

Thomas Howell. DVD extras: audio commentary with director and co-writer Ronald F. Maxwell, co-writer Jeffrey M. Shaara and historians; three "making-of" documentaries; two music videos. *** (PG-13: V)

"PINOCCHIO": What can you say about a live-action version of the classic story that casts mid-40-ish Oscar winner Roberto Benigni ("Life Is Beautiful") as the wooden puppet? Let's just say you have to see it to believe it. Breckin Meyer's ("Kate & Leopold") voice replaces Benigni's in the U.S. version of the film, which appears along with the original Italian-dialogue edition on the DVD release. Nicoletta Braschi, alias Mrs. Benigni, plays the Blue Fairy; Glenn Close, Jim Belushi and Regis Philbin also are heard on the Americanized soundtrack. DVD extras: "making-of" documentaries. ** (G: V)

"LAUREL CANYON": Writer-director Lisa Cholodenko's ("High Art") involving drama boasts a fine cast. Christian Bale ("American Psycho") plays a psychiatrist who agrees to relocate with his fiancée (Kate Beckinsale) to the Los Angeles home of her extremely uninhibited mother (Frances McDormand). Everyone ends up profoundly affected by the free-wheeling nature of their shared surroundings. Natascha McElhone ("Solaris") and Alessandro Nivola also appear. DVD extra: theatrical trailer. *** (R: AS, P)

"M*A*S*H: SEASON FOUR": Another collection of episodes of the classic Korean War comedy series, this three-volume set introduces two characters who would be pivotal to the show's later years - Army surgeon B.J. Hunnicut (played by Mike Farrell) and Col. Sherman Potter (Harry Morgan). One of the most notable stories included here is the award-winning "The Interview," in which a war correspondent poses questions to various members of the 4077th. Alan Alda, Loretta Swit, Larry Linville, Gary Burghoff and Jamie Farr also star. DVD extra: laugh-track elimination option. *** (Not rated: AS, V)

"FRIENDS: THE COMPLETE FOURTH SEASON": More episodes of the long-running TV comedy make their way to home video with this boxed set. Among the major developments: twin sisters Phoebe and Ursula (both played by Lisa Kudrow) learn the identity of their mother (Teri Garr); Chandler and Joey (Matthew Perry, Matt LeBlanc) become rivals for the same woman (Peggy Brewster); and Rachel (Jennifer Aniston) is treated by a couple of familiar-looking emergency-room doctors (George Clooney, Noah Wyle). *** (Not rated: AS, P)

COMING SOON (Upcoming releases):

"FINAL DESTINATION 2" (July 22): In the tradition of the original thriller, several friends escape the Grim Reaper, who remains determined to come calling. (R: AS, P, V)

"THE LIFE OF DAVID GALE" (July 22): A reporter (Kate Winslet) defends a professor (Kevin Spacey) accused of killing a fellow anti-capital-punishment activist (Laura Linney). (R: AS, P, V)

"NICHOLAS NICKLEBY" (July 22): The Dickens classic comes to life again as Charlie Hunnam ("Undeclared") plays the youth determined to overcome countless hardships. (PG: AS, V)

"DAREDEVIL" (July 29): A blind attorney (Ben Affleck) secretly moonlights as a costumed hero and encounters a vengeful woman (Jennifer Garner). (PG-13: AS, P, V)

Musical sounds of the summer 'Smash' onto the WB Network

Just as crowds tend to flock to summer outdoor concerts, The WB Network is banking that viewers will take to a new limited-run music offering.

Showcasing multiple acts in concert during each of its weekly hours, "Pepsi Smash" premieres Wednesday, July 16. Beyonce Knowles, Michelle Branch, Foo Fighters, Evanescence and Jason Mraz are some of the artists who have signed up, but they won't be the only famous people on hand during the six-week run. Guest hosts and other celebrities also will turn up, making "Pepsi Smash" a modern cousin of such '60s music shows as "Shindig" and "Hullabaloo," which took similar approaches.

Admittedly, those programs didn't place the name of the sponsor in their titles, and "Pepsi Smash" isn't the only WB show to be sanctioned by the soft-drink company. Scheduled to debut in September, "Play for a Billion" will give consumers of Pepsi products the chance to ... well, check the show's title again. Drew Carey has been signed as host, with Michael Davies ("Who Wants to Be a Millionaire") producing.

"Pepsi Smash" is being overseen by executive producer Joel Gallen, a veteran of "The Victoria's Secret Fashion Show" and countless MTV specials, and it also includes footage of its music stars on tour across the United States and around the world.

It won't be hard to find such material on Michelle Branch. After performing solo dates from mid-May through early June, the Grammy-winning 20-year-old singer-songwriter-guitarist is opening summer concerts for the Dixie Chicks, with whom she has toured previously.

Those appearances, along with Branch's "Pepsi Smash" guest spot ( slated for July 30), are helping to promote her sophomore album. Released in late June, "Hotel Paper" has yielded its first hit, "Are You Happy Now?" Branch is happy for that early indication of the reception to her new material, after her debut album - the 2001 release "The Spirit Room," which has sold more than 1.5 million copies - produced the enduring singles "Everywhere," "Goodbye to You" and "All You Wanted." Another cut, "You Get Me," became the theme song for the MTV series "Sorority Life."

Branch says her summer touring has been "really great. I've gotten to play a lot of smaller venues as well as arenas, and there's such a difference. You can see everyone in the crowd (at the smaller sites), and it's so much more intimate. I really wanted to let the fans hear the material from my new record."

While her first album has received extra play as background in many movie ads ("Kate & Leopold," "Maid in Manhattan," the current "Alex & Emma"), and also in the WB series "Gilmore Girls," Branch wasn't worried about devising an equally popular follow-up. "This record is so much better than the first," she says. "I've grown up a lot, so I have a lot more to say. Also, I think I'm a better musician and a better songwriter now. Hopefully, I'll just keep getting better at it, and I'm excited to see what my future records are going to sound like. This one was not a struggle at all."

The release of "Hotel Paper" is just one more element of Branch's career whirlwind that also has encompassed touring with Sheryl Crow, who makes a musical appearance on Branch's new album. Another highlight for Branch was recording with Carlos Santana, with whom she shared a Grammy Award for best pop collaboration with vocals, for the number-one hit "The Game of Love" (from Santana's album "Shaman").

"I'm so fortunate that I love what I'm doing," Branch says. "If I loved it any less than I do now, I wouldn't be able to handle it. It would be too much, but this is just a dream come true. I get to do something I love for a living. To have other people in the industry respect me and say, 'You're great,' is really nice."

Natalie Maines, Emily Robison and Martie Seidel - alias the Dixie Chicks - clearly are among Branch's admirers, having invited her back to tour with them through an Aug. 4 date in Nashville, Tenn. Branch is well aware of the controversy stirred by Maines's comments regarding President George W. Bush during a London engagement last March, but she says, "I think most of it has blown over. People are coming to the shows and really enjoying themselves, and music is one of those things you're supposed to enjoy. Hopefully, the audiences will continue to feel that."

Branch made another notable TV appearance recently, portraying 1960s pop star Lesley Gore ("It's My Party," "Judy's Turn to Cry") in a mock "American Bandstand" stint on the NBC series "American Dreams." Branch recalls, "The day after that episode aired, my manager got a call from Lesley. She said, 'Tell Michelle she did an amazing job,' and she offered to take me out for coffee. It was very flattering to have her call and say that I did a good job of being her."

Grammy-winning singer-songwriter-guitarist Michelle Branch is among the artists scheduled to perform on "Pepsi Smash," a summer concert series that premieres Wednesday on The WB Network.
